CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan.--The results of stylistic interchanges between Asian and Western artists are explored in the January art exhibition at Southern Illinois University's Allyn Gallery.

Billed as the most important traveling show of the SIU art department's exhibition season, the collection includes 54 paintings, prints and drawings in various media by American and Asian artists as well as artists of Asian origin now living in the West. Assembled by the American Federation of Arts under the title, "Crosscurrents," the show will be on display at SIU from Jan. 7 through Jan. 24.

With such examples as the cubist and abstractionist-inspired works of Pakistan's Abedin, Japan's Hasegawa and Keyt of Ceylon, along with the Far Eastern reflections of Americans Kline and Tomlin, the show serves to point up the mutual influences at work on artists of the two hemispheres. Included are examples of the recent upsurge of interest--first in the West and then in the Orient--of the abstract qualities of calligraphy.

ANNA, Ill., Jan. -- Modern earth-moving goliaths are filling the air with a roaring din where, according to Southern Illinois University archaeologists, ancient Indian hunting groups camped sporadically over a period of thousands of years at a shallow rock shelter five miles southeast of Anna in Union County.

Flint arrow and spear points, flint blades, pottery fragments, red ochre, copper beads, mortars, grinding stones, nutting stones, pieces of charcoal, and other artifacts are being salvaged from this site which soon will be obliterated in the construction of 200-foot-long bridges to carry Interstate Route 4 across Cypress Creek.

Work at the creek site and at others in the path of interstate highway construction in Illinois is provided for under an archaeological salvage program contained in the Federal Interstate Highway System act. Salvage work in Illinois is under the supervision of archaeologists from the Illinois State Museum, SIU, and the University of Illinois. Excavation labor is provided by construction contractors.

James E. Gillihan, field supervisor from the SIU Museum staff, says findings at the Cypress Creek site indicate it was used by primitive hunting groups as long ago as 4,000 to 6,000 B.C., continuing from early archaic periods through early, middle, and late Woodland cultures until about 1,000 A.D. To date excavations have been made to a depth of four and one-half feet in an area 60 feet long and 35 feet wide along the north face of a shallow overhang of rock that once was used as a shelter by primitive hunting groups. An all-weather fresh water spring near the site may have influenced its use by primitive tribes, he says. The site is subject to periodic flooding by Cypress Creek.

A work crew of 22 members of the Anna Local Union 1330 has been used for excavation under the foremanship of Paul Hopson, Fairfield, a general foreman for Tri-State Engineering Company, Benton, which has the contract for constructing the interstate highway bridges at the site.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- East is East and West is West and idealistic "understanding" alone will never join the twain.

That's the opinion of 27 southern Illinois residents who pondered "Paths of Action Toward Asian-American Understanding and Cooperation" in the fifth Citizen Consultations program just concluded at Southern Illinois University. The two-year old program, designed to get grass roots opinions on critical problems in foreign policy, is sponsored by the U.S. State Department and UNESCO.

Because social groups as well as individuals tend to think in terms of their own self-interest, argued the group, Americans need to learn the art of compromise in dealing with Asian neighbors. Dumping surplus products on the world market at the expense of another country's economy, supporting a small segment of domestic employment even though the result might throw thousands out of work abroad, and in general failing to couple "understanding" with a willingness to sacrifice--these were among handicaps cited by the group.

A majority of the group favored an across-the-board loosening of U.S. restrictions on entry into the nation, even to communists, as one means of stimulating inter-hemisphere acquaintance. Members also endorsed a full scale program of cultural contact between the U.S. and Asian nations. Objecting to the term "cultural exchange", the group said "waiting for a one and one ratio is unnecessary and unwise. Bring in as many and send as many as possible--from students and teachers to baseball teams and folk dancing groups."

To compare ingrained conceptions and fixed images--blocks to understanding between East and West--the work group invited five Asian students at SIU to give their own impressions of Americans. Tourists and servicemen, most of the guests agreed, played major roles in building one American stereotype--that of the heavy, reckless spender. However, that impression changed when they arrived in the U.S.: "Americans don't have as much money as we had always thought."

Formosan Chi-Ming Hwang, a government student, suggested that Chinese and Americans are poles apart because they interpret "civilization" differently.

"Americans think the Chinese are far behind because they lack material things, while the Chinese feel they are far superior because of their rich cultural background."

Brijen Gupta of India said both Americans and Asians undercut the bridge of understanding by jumping into political discussions at first meeting. "Neither," he said, "knows enough about the other nation's circumstances and background to understand it politically, which leads to much heat and no light."

Idealism can also hamper social understanding--as for instance in India, where the typical American automatically rejects the caste system as "undemocratic" without considering India's own cultural-religious heritage.

Among other recommendations of the group were university Asian Study programs (similar to one begun at SIU this year), assigning American Negroes to Asian posts with the U.S. government, and more oriental history and language training in the schools.

Carbondale, Illinois---A Southern Illinois University student is taking time off from his studies to dive for Indian relics in southeastern Mexico.

John W. Newbury worked for a commercial diving firm in Miami before coming to S-I-U to study anthropology. For the next three-and-a-half months, he'll be diving for artifacts of the ancient Maya civilization near Merida, Yucatan, in flooded limestone caverns--some of them 200 feet deep. The expedition is being sponsored by Tulane University and the National Geographic Society. Newbury will return to his classes at S-I-U March 30th.

Carbondale, Illinois---A Southern Illinois University geneticist says a tiny structure called the centriole is radiation's "primary target" for the destruction of living cells. Dr. Carl C. Lindegren reports that the centriole --previously overlooked in radiation studies -- is actually the "heart and brain" of the cell. He said cells can absorb a certain amount of radiation and still continue to grow and reproduce, but destruction of the centrioles means instant death for the cell.

With this new knowledge, Lindegren says, science may be aided in efforts to build up resistance in living organisms against radiation. Lindegren is director of S-I-U's Biological Research Laboratory.

Carbondale, Illinois---A simple machine now in the experimental stage at Rosiclare, Illinois, may be the key to a mild revolution in municipal water fluoridation. An article in the winter issue of the Southern Illinois Business Bulletin published by Southern Illinois University, says the new machine is fluoridating 150-thousand gallons of drinking water a day at Rosiclare--at a cost of about eight cents.

The new process, developed by the Minerva Oil Company, uses plain fluorspar at three cents a pound in contrast to the more common method of using expensive fluorine compounds. General adoption of the new process could mean a big economic boost for the Rosiclare area, the article states, since it produces 90 percent of the fluorspar mined in this country.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- Next Saturday (Jan. 17) is the enrollment deadline for a Southern Illinois University course in child psychology which is being taught by radio.

Students may tune in the course each Saturday from 12:15 to 1 p.m. over Radio Station KMOX, St. Louis. Persons over 21 or high school graduates who pay a $16.30 enrollment fee and successfully complete the course will receive two hours of college credit, according to the instructor, Dr. Leslie Malpass, SIU associate professor of psychology. The University's Extension Division in Carbondale is accepting enrollments by mail.

Students will receive a course outline, weekly lessons and a course text. They also will be required to attend four two-hour classroom sessions at either SIU's East St. Louis or Carbondale campus.

The 16-week course began Saturday (Jan. 10) with a discussion on "Child Psychology and Common Sense" directed by William Lyle, SIU assistant professor of psychology.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- A Southern Illinois University professor will explain what the National Defense Education Act means to southern Illinois schools at a meeting of the Educational Council of 100 board of directors Tuesday (Jan. 13) in Carbondale.

The speaker will be Dr. Vera L. Peacock, chairman of SIU's foreign languages department. Her talk will follow a 6 p.m. dinner meeting at the University Cafeteria.

Passed by Congress last year, the Act provides federal aid for the teaching of mathematics, science and foreign languages in secondary schools and for preparing teachers in those fields.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan.--America's foremost historical scholar, 56-year old Henry Steele Commager, will discuss "American Nationalism" in three lectures at Southern Illinois University next week.

Commager, who with Samuel Eliot Morison wrote the massive "Growth of the American Republic," will speak at 8 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday (Jan. 19, 21, 23) in Muckelroy Auditorium of the SIU Agriculture Building. His appearances, all open to the public, mark the first time one guest lecturer has been featured in the entire series.

Professor of history, Amherst College and Columbia University, Commager is best known as a chronicler of America's intellectual history. His writings, many now regarded as classics, have included "The Heritage of America," a work co-authored with Allan Nevins; "The American Mind," "America in Perspective," "America: the Story of a Free People" (also with Nevins); "Tocqueville's Democracy in America;" "Majority Rule and Minority Rights," and the multi-volume epic, "The Rise of the American Nation."

Commager has been Bacon lecturer at Boston University, Richards lecturer at the University of Virginia and Pitt professor of American History at England's Cambridge University, in addition to serving as distinguished professor at universities in the U.S. and England. During and after World War II, he served abroad as historical researcher for the War Department and Office of War Information.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- A popular paperback edition of general zoology co-authored by Southern Illinois University's Harvey I. Fisher has gone into its second printing less than a month after the first edition of 100,000 copies.

"Zoology: An Introduction to the Animal Kingdom," is the first in a new series of illustrated pocket size publications by Simon and Shuster of New York, whose previous Golden Nature Guide and Golden Regional Guide series have been printed in the millions. Dr. Fisher, chairman of the SIU zoology department, and R. Will Burnett, professor of science education at the University of Illinois, were picked to author the first volume in the new series which will treat with basic scientific principles.

Containing over 450 color plates, the $1 book covers zoology under such headings as "Animals with Backbones," "Animals with Jointed Legs," "Maintaining the Race," "The Lower Animals," and "Animals and Environments". Slated to follow it is a similar pocket edition on botany.

Fisher, whose research ranks him among the top authorities on bird anatomy, has been zoology department chairman at Southern for three years. He has served as a consultant to science teacher improvement programs in both the state and national level.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- Southern Illinois University's fourth annual Festival of Fine Arts begins here Sunday (Jan. 18) afternoon with a recital of Italian music and the opening of an Italian printmaking exhibition.

SIU President Delyte Morris will officially open the month-long Festival in a 3:30 p.m. program at Shryock Auditorium. An address by Dr. Charles Tenney, vice-president, will follow introductory remarks by President Morris and Burnett Shryock, dean of the School of Fine Arts, after which the University Brass Choir and Madrigal Singers will join for a concert depicting the development of musical arts in Italy.

An exhibition of contemporary Italian prints from the George Binet collection will open the same afternoon in the Allyn Gallery. All attractions will be free to the public.

Dr. Tenney's address, "Art as an International Language," will reflect the 1959 Festival theme: "Italy and the Arts." Historical and contemporary highlights of Italy's contributions to art will be accented throughout the entire schedule of events continuing through an all-campus "Italian Nights" costume ball the night of Feb. 28.

All Festival programs with the exception of a Jan. 22 Community Concert and three Italian movies will be open to the public without charge. The Community Concert--a Concert Opera Company production of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" (Thursday, Jan. 22) --will be open to Community Concert season ticket holders and SIU students.

Admission to the movies will be 40 cents.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- Dr. J. Robert Nelson, dean of the Divinity School at Vanderbilt University, will be the keynote speaker for Religion-in-Life Week Jan. 8-Feb. 4 at Southern Illinois University.

"Faith" is the theme for this year's event, which is sponsored by the SIU Inter-Faith Council.

Dr. Nelson will open the week's activities by speaking at a 6 p.m. faculty banquet Wednesday (Jan. 28) at the University Cafeteria. He also will lead an open discussion at 8 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium. On Thursday, Dr. Nelson will speak at a 10 a.m. freshman convocation in Shryock Auditorium and at an 8 p.m. "Forum of Faith" at the Wesley Foundation.

A movie with a religious theme, "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," will be shown at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Friday in Furr Auditorium, University School.

Teams of student volunteers will participate in Carbondale work projects on Saturday. They will paint Teen Town and the Center for the Blind and will clean up the city park.

Carbondale ministers and University faculty members will be guest speakers in student residence halls and organized houses Thursday, Monday and Tuesday evenings. Dr. William Henry Harris, SIU associate professor of philosophy, will lead a panel discussion on world religions at 8 p.m. Tuesday in University School Studio Theater. Daily events during the Week will be a 7 a.m. mass at St. Francis Xavier Church, a 12:30 p.m. noonday chapel at the Baptist Foundation, and a 5:15 p.m. prayer service at the Canterbury House.

Other activities:

Thursday -- Baptist Student Union Rally at 7:30 p.m. at the Baptist Foundation

Sunday -- Address by Grett Sluiter, missionary from Holland to Kenya, at 5 p.m. at the Student Christian Foundation; discussion on nuclear disarmament at 5:30 p.m. at the First Methodist Church; address by Dr. Herbert Koepp-Baker, SIU distinguished visiting professor, at a 6:30 p.m. banquet at the Canterbury Club

Wednesday (Feb. 4) -- Talk on "Religion Vs. Secularism in the Modern Age" by Father Joseph Hays at 8 p.m. at the Newman Club.

Cooperating student religious organizations besides those mentioned are Gamma Delta, Christian Science Organization, Jewish Organization and Unitarian Fellowship.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Jan. --Preparations for the annual Military Ball, gala social event sponsored by Southern Illinois University's Air Force ROTC wing, have gone into the final week here.

The event will be climaxed by the coronation of a new AFROTC Queen. Playing for the formal Ball at 9 p.m. Friday (Jan. 23) at the Carbondale Armory will be the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra, which will also present a public concert starting at 7:30 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Although Southern's 1,700-man cadet wing has already voted for the Queen, the winner won't be announced until minutes before the coronation. The five candidates are Barbara Larkin of Benton; Mary Ruth Newlin of Mt. Carmel; Joann Ranek of Edwardsville; Carol Rischek of St. Louis and Helen Smith of Chester. One of the five will be crowned Queen, with the privilege of reigning over all cadet social events for the next year, by Joan Pratte of Centerville Station, last year's titlist.

The retiring queen will be wearing an original gown by Benham of New York, a gift of the cadet corps. The presentation of a high-fashion formal gown is a traditional part of the event.

The new Queen will be presented by Col. Alexander MacMillan, for whom the Ball will mark the last major social event for the wing under his command. Col. MacMillan, head of the SIU detachment, will retire from the Air Force in February.

Reserved seat tickets to the concert are priced at $1.50, with general admission tickets set at $1.25.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan.--Two Southern Illinois University Press entries in the 1958 Midwestern Books Competition are among the 22 books selected by a judging panel as "the outstanding titles of the year in design and production." The announcement was made at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, where the competition was held.

The two winning SIU Press productions are: "Modes of Being" by Paul Weiss, and "American Labor Unions and Politics, 1900-1918" by Marc Karson. Both were published during 1958 and were the only titles entered by the SIU Press. Karson is associate professor of government at SIU.

The judging panel included Prof. Rollo Silver, Boston, Simmons College Library School; A. Bradlee Emmons, director of manufacturing and secretary of Little, Brown and Co., publishers; and Burton L. Stratton, typographer and production manager for the Harvard University Press. The winning books will be exhibited during the year in 35 to 40 libraries throughout the midwest.

Carbondale, Ill., Jan. -- The assistant director of New York University's Reading Clinic will join the Southern Illinois University staff next fall as a professor of elementary education.

The appointment of Robert Karlin, effective next Sept. 14, was announced at a meeting of the University board of trustees Tuesday (Jan. 27).

At the same time, the board confirmed the appointment of Carmen A. Piccone as head football coach to replace Al Kawal who resigned two weeks ago.

Joining the faculty next month will be John M. Pollock, who will become associate professor of industrial education. He has served on the staff of the University of Georgia and as vocational education specialist for the International Cooperation Administration in Nicaragua.

The board also named Charles R. Kaut of the University of Wyoming as assistant professor of anthropology, starting Feb. 2.

Two additional distinguished visiting professors will be at the University during the spring term, the board reported. They are O. C. Stine, in the department of agricultural industries, and James F. Dubuar, in forestry. Stine, co-author of the book "The Agricultural Commodity Programs," has taught at the University of California, the American University, and Brookings Institute. Dubuar was a professor at New York College of Forestry for nearly 40 years.

Next September, Charles E. Skinner, New York University professor, will join the staff as a visiting professor of guidance for the entire school year.

In other action, the trustees divided the department of Secondary Education into departments of higher education and secondary education, which will be activated in the College of Education July 1. Courses dealing with the preparation of teachers for colleges, universities, junior colleges, and the like, currently offered in Southern's department of secondary education will be offered in a department of higher education. The board also authorized the department of geology to offer work leading to a master's degree.

Kenneth M. Thompson, lecturer in management, was promoted to associate professor, and Edmund C. Hasse was named assistant director of the Information Service.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. -- Southern Illinois University's Little Grassy Lake Campus has been selected by the American Red Cross as a site for one of its national aquatic schools. The Little Grassy Lake School will be held June 7-17.

Purpose of the school is to train persons for leadership in waterfront safety and rescue, according to Dr. William H. Freeberg, chairman of the SIU recreation and outdoor education department. Some 50 students and 20 staff members are expected to participate.

Students will receive instruction in first aid and water safety through lectures, demonstrations and performance tests, Freeberg said. They will use new dining and housing facilities completed at the SIU camping area last fall. In charge of arrangements is Edmond J. Mongeon, St. Louis, midwestern director of first aid and water safety services for the Red Cross.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Feb. -- Charlie Vaughn continues his scoring mastery after 20 games leading Southern Illinois University's Salukis with 479 points.

Vaughn's average dropped from 24.2 to 23.9 after a chilly night in the vast Chicago Stadium last Saturday (Feb. 7). The freshman forward netted only 18 as the Salukis lost to Wheaton, 79-73.

With five games remaining, Vaughn is a cinch to break Tom Millikin's single season scoring mark of 485 points. Vaughn will need seven points in Friday's (Feb. 13) Interstate Conference battle at Eastern Illinois to crack the record.

Southern also needs only 14 points to break the team season scoring record. The Salukis own 1,758 points (87.9 per game this year), only 13 below the all-time high of 1,771 set by the 1955-56 club.

Second in scoring for Southern is Captain Seymour Bryson, senior center from Quincy who is having his best season at SIU. Bryson is maintaining a 19.9 average with 397 points. He also leads in rebounding with 211--10.6 a game.

Guards Dick Ruggles, Quincy, Mass., and Jim Gualdoni, Herrin, are battling for third in the scoring race. Ruggles in 19 games has 145 points, and Gualdoni has 140 in 18 games.

Following the Eastern Illinois contest, Southern will entertain Eastern Michigan Feb. 20 and Central Michigan Feb. 21.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Ten Illinois colleges and universities will compete in an oratory contest Friday and Saturday at Southern Illinois University.

Schools entered are Bradley, Illinois College, Northern Illinois, Augustana, Eureka, Monmouth, Illinois Normal, Illinois Wesleyan, Eastern Illinois and S-I-U.

Winners will advance to a regional contest in April at Michigan State University.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- One of America's popular heroines of the Old West... Calamity Jane...has been debunked as "a female bum" by a Southern Illinois University historian.

Harold Briggs says research reveals that Calamity had none of the romantic or heroic qualities often ascribed to her. Much of the myth was fabricated by the woman herself when she toured the midwest with a traveling museum, he said.

Calamity Jane, whose real name was Martha Jane Canary, died in 1903 in a Black Hills gold camp.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Feb. -- Southern Illinois University debaters will leave Feb. 26 for the University of Mississippi tournament after winning third place in the Purdue Novice Tournament and finishing among finalists in the Northwestern University Invitational meet over the Feb. 13-14 week-end.

Two SIU teams captured six out of eight debates for third place in the 40-team Purdue tournament. Ann Hughes of McLeansboro and Sharon Loveless of Mattoon beat Louisville, Manchester and Greenville while Edson Petty of Evansville (2006 Lincoln) and Michael Morris of Carbondale beat Manchester, Wayne State and the University of Chicago. Miss Loveless was cited as one of the four top individual debaters in the tournament.

Kent Brandon of Carbondale and Gary Bengston of Rockford (225 Logan) captured six out of eight preliminary matches before being eliminated by Dartmouth in the payoff rounds of the Northwestern meet. The two defeated Navy, William and Mary, Carroll College, Wisconsin State, Northern Illinois and Southwest Missouri State, while losing to the University of Kansas and Michigan State. The tournament, second only to the West Point National in overall power, included 103 teams from 53 colleges and universities.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Feb.--A Southern Illinois University music student has changed her mind about a teaching career after winning a Metropolitan Opera audition.

Twenty-one-year-old Geraldine Weber, senior from Union, Mo., had planned to teach high school music after graduation from SIU this June. Now, after winning two "Met" eliminations, stamping her as one of the midwest's most promising young sopranos, she's determined to "take a stab" at a professional career.

Much of her planning will hinge on an audition before the Met's manager, Rudolph Bing, March 20 in New York. Miss Weber not only won first place in a regional audition Sunday but also was awarded $300 and the expense-paid trip when she topped 15 other contestants from Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas in regional auditions at Washington University in St. Louis Sunday (Feb. 15). She reached that stage of the nationwide talent search by winning one of four Missouri district auditions two weeks earlier.

In New York, Miss Weber, blonde lyric soprano, will be competing with some 13 other regional finalists from all over the nation. The winner will receive $2,000 plus a possible Metropolitan Opera contract. Second place will be worth $1,000.

If scholastic achievement is an index, Miss Weber should be a strong contender. She has attended Southern on a University scholarship all four years. In addition, she has won a Presser Foundation music award each year.

A member of both the University Choir and Madrigal Singers, Miss Weber joined Southern's Opera Workshop during her sophomore year. Although recognized as one of the leading vocalists in Director William Taylor's Opera Workshop company, it was her performance as "Mimi" in "La Boheme," the group's first full scale operatic production in 1958, that demonstrated a first-rate professional ability.

During 1958, Miss Weber studied with Leslie Chabay, former Metropolitan tenor who was distinguished visiting professor at Southern. She credits him for refining her audition-winning potential.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Feb. -- Southern Illinois women's clubs, eyeing a $10,000 first prize in a community achievement contest, will send representatives to a workshop at Southern Illinois University next Tuesday (Feb. 24), with hopes of learning how to win it.

The training session is part of a nationwide cooperative effort by the National University Extension Association. Similar programs are scheduled at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois in March.

The community achievement contest, which ends in March, 1960, is co-sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. The contest is intended to serve as an incentive for women's clubs to provide leadership for community action. Judging is based on the clubs' studies of community needs, their plans to meet those needs, and their success in achieving these goals.

Aims of the day-long campus conferences are to help participants understand the process of organizing a program for community achievement, and to give them practice in using effective group procedures. Mrs. L.A. Clark, community achievement state chairman, will open the SIU conclave at 10 a.m. in the Agriculture Building and will explain the contest rules.

Heading the training staff at Carbondale is Richard Franklin, assistant director of SIU's Community Development Institute. Working with Franklin will be Kenneth Haygood, director of community projects at the University of Chicago, and Norman Johnson, of the University of Illinois' division of university extension.

Topics of discussion include: "What Makes for a Winning Project?"; "Solving Problems in a Community Improvement Program", and "What Help is Available to You?"

CARBONDALE, ILL., Jan. -- Southern Illinois University's student drama company will spend the summer season on their home stage this year for the first time.

During the past four years, the Southern Players have pulled stakes for off-campus summer stock ventures, in 1955 and 1956 at Branson, Mo., and in the last two seasons at New Salem State Park. Now, with the prospect of air conditioning in their campus theater, the Players' will schedule a four-play bill during the eight week summer session.

Dr. Sherwin Abrams, assistant professor of theater at SIU and co-producer of the Players' year-long drama series, says the recent institution of a graduate program in the theater department, and the demands of an increasingly popular summertime musical production (given in cooperation with the music department) clinched the decision to stay at home. "However, this doesn't mean that we've abandoned thoughts of returning to New Salem State Park in the future," Abrams added. "In time we hope to expand summer theater activity both in Carbondale and at Petersburg, perhaps even next year."

Two 10-ton air conditioning units are scheduled to be installed in the Southern Playhouse by June 15, in time to keep summer playgoers refreshed as well as entertained. The playbill has not yet been announced.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS--Two Southern Illinois University psychologists have been awarded more than 45-thousand dollars for two-year study of bright, normal and retarded school children.

Most of the funds came from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Leslie Malpass and Dr. Neil Carrier will study the reactions and emotional responses of more than 100 school children to learning tasks which are assigned to them.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A guided missile will be publicly demonstrated on the stage of Southern Illinois University's Muckelroy Auditorium tomorrow night (Wednesday).

Conrad Neal, a native of West Frankfort, will use a lighted cigarette to show the operation of the infra-red homing device on the Sidewinder missile. He is supervisory scientist in charge of design and development of the Sidewinder guidance control system. The reaction of the missile to a lighted cigarette, Neal says, is similar to its response to the heat generated by enemy aircraft.

CARBONDALE, Ill., March--Brazil will be highlighted in Southern Illinois University's sixth annual week-long Pan American Festival April 13-18.

Sponsored by Southern's Latin American Institute, the festival will feature musical programs, exhibits, movies, lectures, and panel discussions emphasizing the contemporary culture and development of Brazil. A country larger than the United States (without Alaska), Brazil has varied climatic and ethnic conditions and cannot be analyzed as if it were a simple geographic unity, says Dr. Albert W. Bork, director of the Institute.

Visiting lecturers for the Festival will be Dr. Fred P. Ellison of the University of Illinois department of Spanish and Italian, and Dr. Manoel Cardozo, Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. Planning the event is a Festival committee headed by J. Cary Davis, SIU professor of foreign languages.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Feb. -- Officials of the National Council on Schoolhouse Construction will answer critics of the "modern design" trend in school buildings at Southern Illinois University's annual School Administrators Workshop March 23-27 at Giant City State Park Lodge.

On March 25, the public will be invited to hear Dr. W. D. McClurkin, NCSC secretary, speak on "Are Our Children Living in Palaces?" The address is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the park lodge, according to Dr. Victor R. Randolph, SIU professor of elementary education and workshop director.

George Englehardt, NCSC president, will speak March 26-27 on "School Housing and the State Department of Education." McClurkin is professor of educational administration and supervision at George Peabody College and Englehardt is director of school building services for the Missouri State Department of Education.

The workshop also will feature a panel discussion by southern Illinois school administrators who have recently completed building programs, Randolph said.

CARBONDALE, Ill., March -- Pianist Eugene List and the Knickerbocker Players will join for a "Concerto Festival" in the final Community Concert attraction of the season here April 1. The 8:00 p.m. concert in Southern Illinois University's Shryock Auditorium will be open to Carbondale Community Concert Association members and SIU students.

The program will consist of work composed expressly for piano and small orchestra. Formed only last year, the package includes 11 string players and solo trumpet, in addition to List. Although <sup>the</sup> Knickerbocker Players are directed by Cellist George Koutzen, he does no conducting during the concerts.

List, who made an unusual debut at the age of 16 by playing the Shostakovich Piano Concerto with the Philadelphia Orchestra, performed last year in Asia under sponsorship of the International Exchange Program of the American National Theater Academy. He has appeared 34 times with the New York Philharmonic and was one of the first "classical" pianists to play on the Steve Allen television show, "Tonight." As Sergeant List, he played for Truman, Churchill and Stalin at the Potsdam Big Three conference and subsequently appeared in other command engagements at the White House.

The Knickerbocker Players were formed in 1954 by Koutzen, who wanted a small orchestra which could offer more than duo, trio or quartet repertory. Most of its works are too big for string quartet and too small for full orchestra.

CARBONDALE, Ill., March --The annual campaign dinner to kick off Carbondale's Community Concert Association membership drive for 1959-60 will be held Monday (March 30) at 6:30 p.m. in the banquet room of Engel's Restaurant here.

Members of the Carbondale Association--whose 25 years of continuous existence mark it as one of the oldest in the nation--will map plans for a week long season ticket drive for four concert attractions on the Southern Illinois University campus next year. Among special guests will be Mrs. Florence Strandberg, New York representative of Community Concerts. The names of two of next season's concert attractions will be announced at the banquet.

The Carbondale Association, headed by Robert Faner, includes members from 11 area communities in addition to Carbondale. Some 85 members will conduct local ticket sales. The main ticket office will be located at Lemasters Music Store in Carbondale. The drive will close at noon April 4.

The cost of memberships will be the regular $6, entitling the holder to attend all of the concerts. Memberships will be available only during the campaign week, according to Faner.

Carbondale, Illinois -- The man who heads Southern Illinois University's Residence Centers in Alton and East St. Louis was named a vice-president of the University Wednesday.

Dr. Harold W. See, who has had the title executive dean, is now vice-president of the Southwestern Illinois Campus of S-I-U. A fund drive is underway by a citizens group to raise funds to buy a campus site near Edwardsville.

See has been in charge of Southern's residence center program in Madison and St. Clair Counties since the program started in 1955.

At the same time that the University board of trustees reported See's appointment, they announced that Dr. George H. Hand, vice president for business affairs, has asked to be relieved of that assignment. Approval was given on Hand's request that he be named chairman of a new Department of Higher Education at Southern. This department -- one of several of its kind in the country -- will undertake a top priority program to help relieve the national shortage of college and university teachers.

Hand, formerly president of Fairmont State College, West Virginia, has been a vice-president at Southern since 1952. No successor was appointed to this post.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Southern Illinois University told its board of trustees Wednesday that it cannot recruit and hold qualified faculty members with its present salary scales.

S-I-U officials said pay scales in every rank from assistant professor through the deans are lower at Southern than the average reported by other major universities. Professors, for example, make 900-dollars a year less than the average at Southern, and associate professors are 700-dollars below the norm.

The University said it hoped to remedy the situation if the state legislature provides sufficient funds in the next biennium.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April -- Southern Illinois University researchers have come up with some interesting facts about the fish population in Crab Orchard Lake.

Of 200 pounds of fish removed from one cove, only 10 percent were of catchable size. Ideally 80 percent should be eligible for the fisherman's creel. However, Graduate Student Edward Lyles, who is conducting the study aimed at better fish management, says Crab Orchard apparently harbors a good population of large bass.

The cove, less than two acres in size, yielded eight largemouth bass -- totaling 15 pounds -- among the 16 species of fish brought to the surface by chemical knock-out drops. Most of the haul was made up of crappie and shad, and 73 pounds of small yellow bass.

The technique for fish studies developed at S-I-U enables the fish to recover from the effects of the chemical as soon as they are transferred to fresh water, and the chemical does not effect animals or humans.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A Southern Illinois University professor, who has been studying the subject for nine years, says the recent stir over subliminal perception in advertising is a case of much ado about nothing.

Subliminal perception is a technique used by advertisers to sneak across a commercial so quickly or so faintly that the listener doesn't know what hit him.

Psychologist Israel Goldiamond debunked the technique in a report to the New Jersey state legislature, which is conducting hearings on this matter of "tampering with the subconscious."

Says Goldiamond: "All the subliminal persuaders are doing is weakening their messages and gaining no more customers than they would by the old-fashioned, forthright blast technique."

Far from being a threat, Goldiamond reports, subliminal advertising may be a boon -- by "rendering obnoxious advertising less effective."

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- The Doris Humphrey Dance Theater -- composed of students and instructors from New York's Juillard School of Music -- will appear in a free public performance at Southern Illinois University Monday evening. That will be at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

The group was founded by Doris Humphrey who, until her death last year, was called one of the "Big Three" of American choreography.

Also Monday night, at 8 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium, Dr. John Mayor, director of education of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, will give a public lecture on "Planning Modern Science Education Programs."

CARBONDALE, Ill., April--How's this for a swap: bass, crappie and other game fish for farm-pond populations of sunfish?

Fish researchers at Southern Illinois University are offering exactly that--a complete new stock of game species for all the sunfish area farmers will let them clean from their ponds.

Dr. William Lewis, head of SIU's Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory, said he needs a large stock of sunfish for experimental work. He'd like to swap with owners of one-quarter to one-half acre ponds within 20 miles of Carbondale. The transaction will involve a preliminary test seining to determine sunfish populations, then re-stocking of game fish for whatever he takes out.

Lewis said ponds nearest Carbondale will be given priority. Interested traders can write to Lewis in care of the SIU zoology department.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April--Research grants totalling more than $51,000 were awarded during April to Dr. Carl C. Lindegren, director of Southern Illinois University's Biological Research Laboratory.

Three of the four grants were made in support of yeast investigations related to cancer. The other, from the Atomic Energy Commission, is a renewal of research funds for radiation studies.

The Laboratory received $13,512 from the American Cancer Society and another $15,984 from the Society's Illinois Division. The other cancer grant, amounting to $9,800, was awarded by the Damon Runyan Memorial Fund. The one-year grant from the AEC, which has been supporting Lindegren's work for the past decade, was for $11,800.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May--Governor William G. Stratton will dedicate 18 new buildings at Southern Illinois University in ceremonies next Tuesday (May 26).

Open to the public, the program will begin at 10:15 a.m. (CDT) with a cornerstone ceremony at McAndrew Stadium for a $3,799,000 University Center, under construction on South Thompson street. After the governor's address, some 1,600 Air Force ROTC cadets will pass in review.

At 2 p.m., Gov. Stratton will dedicate a plaque for nine small group housing units nearing completion on the west side of Campus Lake. A similar ceremony will be held at 3 p.m. at the site of eight family housing units on South Wall street.

The nine small residence units, housing 405 students, will cost $1,900,000. The family apartments, which will accommodate 128 married students and staff members, will cost $1,480,000. The only family housing on the campus now is in barracks buildings.

Most of the funds for the University Center and the housing units came from federal and state loans, though state appropriations will cover one-fourth of the cost of the housing projects.

Between the dedications, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., barbecued chicken will be served at the east side of the Agriculture Building. Tickets are on sale at SIU at $1.50 each.

DECORATION DAY AND CEMETERIES
John W. Allen
Southern Illinois University

When Memorial Day, once called Decoration Day, comes around each year many go to visit family burying grounds and to pay their respects to the dead. For one day at least, millions become cemetery conscious. In most states this special day is observed on May 30. In some of the more southern states the date is earlier, being decided partly by the time when flowers are regularly in bloom.

The present-day organized observance is the continuance of a custom that began just over 90 years ago. For ages, however, Man has laid his dead away with a certain amount of ceremony and ritual. Among almost all races and at all times the dead have been buried in marked graves which the living return to visit. Cemeteries thus have become memorials and the grounds they occupy have become hallowed -- so much so that the desecration of graves is almost universally condemned. Over the English speaking world burial plots often are referred to as "God's Acre."

Apparently it is only in America that a specific date is set by law or proclamation as one on which people are asked to pause and pay tribute to the dead. There are records of three organized community observances as early as 1866. One of these was in Pennsylvania, a second was in Georgia, and the third was in Carbondale, Illinois. Here, according to records, 202 Civil War veterans marched in formation from the Methodist Church to Woodlawn Cemetery where General John A. Logan, then a resident of Carbondale, was the speaker of the day.

Two years later Logan had become commander of the Grand Army of the Republic and issued his famous General Order No. 11, setting aside May 30 as the date to be marked by the many posts of that organization. In his directive, Logan asked that the living veterans make pilgrimage to the graves of their departed comrades, place flowers upon them, and otherwise pay tribute to their memory. The order also asked that the practice be continued so long as any survived.

decoration day 2

The Civil War veterans have gone, but everyone still seems to agree that it is good to pause and pay tribute to the dead to be thankful for the blessings that the labors of these who have gone before have left to the living.

After all, cemeteries, called graveyards in former years, are more than burying grounds. They literally are storehouses of history. They do not tell so much about the institutions, ideas, wars and governments as they do of the simple lives of men and women. Often this is information not recorded elsewhere unless it was in a family Bible. Time, neglect, accident and sometimes indifference have caused the loss of many of these family Bibles. The same causes, plus occasional wilful destruction, have likewise led to the disappearance of many older grave markers.

It was not until 1870 that there were laws in Illinois requiring that births and deaths be recorded. It was some decades afterwards that the practice of doing so became general. Thus, the records of many pioneers, who helped to hew homes out of the wilderness and to establish the state, are left only on the crumbling stones of neglected, overgrown plots whose only care seems to be the annual "burning over" given some of them.

Sometimes the stones which mark the final resting places of earlier settlers have been removed and used in the foundations of buildings, or as doorsteps, or even to fill gullies. In other cases the old burial plots have been converted into cow pastures or hog-lots where the stones are left for the pigs to root about. In some cases the stones have been removed so that the ground could be used to grow another bushel or two of surplus grain.

It would portend no good for a people to destroy their memorials or to cease to build others. Benjamin Franklin said, "Show me first the graveyards of a country and I will tell you the character of its people." It is somewhat cheering to observe that our graveyards are steadily receiving better care.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL, MAY -- Dr. Alonzo F. Myers of New York University, nationally-known educational consultant who was retained by the Southwestern Illinois Council on Higher Education two years ago, has been named winner of one of three 1959 Great Teacher Awards made by the NYU Alumni Federation.

Offered this year for the first time, each of the annual awards is accompanied by an honorarium of $1000. Outstanding teaching is the sole consideration in the making of selections.

Dr. Myers, chairman of the NYU Department of Higher Education, made the survey of educational needs in Madison and St. Clair Counties which has served as a basis for the subsequent development of SIU Residence Centers in East St. Louis and Alton, preceding establishment of a permanent SIU four-year branch at Edwardsville.

Following the survey, Dr. Myers was retained by SIU as a consultant on development of the two-county program. He also has served as a consultant on new programs and program revisions on the SIU main campus at Carbondale.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Governor Stratton will dedicate 17 new buildings on the Southern Illinois University campus Tuesday and lay a cornerstone for another. He also will deliver an address in McAndrew Stadium where the ceremonies will begin at 10:15 a.m.

The governor will lay the cornerstone for the multi-million dollar University Center building now under construction. He will then place dedicatory plaques at one group of nine small housing units for students, and at nine family housing units. Most of the funds for the buildings came from state and federal loans.

In the past seven years, Stratton has taken part in cornerstone or dedication ceremonies for 13 buildings at S-I-U. Following his morning address, he will review the University's 15-hundred Air Force R-O-T-C cadets.

Carbondale, Illinois -- The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will present its final concert of the season at Carbondale Sunday. The performing cast will include three choirs, a brass band, and Baritone Soloist Ralph Appelman, who has sung concert and oratorio engagements throughout the U.S.

The concert, featuring the "Prologue in the Heavens" from the opera "Mefistofele" (Meh-fis-TOFF-ill-ee), will be at 3:30 p.m. in Southern Illinois University's Shryock Auditorium.

Carbondale, Illinois -- The Southern Illinois University board of trustees has voted to increase tuition rates beginning next fall.

Tuition will be hiked seven dollars a quarter for Illinois residents and nine dollars for out-of-state students attending S-I-U. That will make tuition rate 42-dollars a term for Illinois residents and 92 dollars for others.

The tuition boost is the second in the past two years at Southern, and is in line with recent increases at other state universities.

Carbondale, Ill., May -- General salary increases will be possible in each of the next two years with the amended Southern Illinois University budget now before the legislature, SIU President Delyte W. Morris said today.

Morris said Gov. William Stratton had approved an additional $4.7 million in general revenue funds over his original budget recommendations for operating expenses at SIU during the next biennium. Of this total, $3 million will be used for moderate salary boosts.

In the governor's budget message of January, SIU was slated to receive $27,117,000 for operating expenses and $5.5 million for buildings and capital improvements. Bills submitted to the House of Representatives hiked these figures to $32,285,000 for operating and $6,800,000 for capital improvements. A hearing on the bills is scheduled for Tuesday (June 2).

Among the new items on the budget were $1 million for completion of the Home Economics Building Group which is now under construction, and $300,000 to match federal funds for a Clinical Services Building.

An item of $300,000 which Gov. Stratton has approved would be used for planning the development at the proposed Edwardsville campus at SIU, it was announced. Morris said the money would pay for basic engineering studies and architectural planning. Appropriations were also requested for remodeling, rehabilitation, and the addition of classrooms and laboratories at SIU Residence Centers at Alton and East St. Louis.

The budget includes funds for new physical education fields near Southern's proposed Physical Education and Military Training Building, and approximately $500,000 for basic utilities installation there.

The amended budget added $3.7 million to funds for personal services, bringing this total to $23,732,000. Contractual services and commodities, each hiked $500,000 over the governor's original recommendations, would receive $2.1 million and $1.8 million from the budget bills introduced by Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna and 19 co-sponsors Wednesday (May 27).

Morris said the proposed budget increases would enable SIU to grant salary increases July 1 and at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June -- Southern Illinois Symphony Conductor Carmine Ficocelli has put out the welcome mat for vocalists and instrumentalists who would like to appear in a summer series of evening "pop" concerts at Southern Illinois University.

The outdoor concerts, inaugurated last year with the help of SIU's Office of Student Affairs, will begin June 30. One concert will be staged each Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. on the patio of Woody Hall, SIU women's dormitory. A feature of the performances, open free to the public, will be candle-lit tables, a la the Boston Pops annual "champagne" concerts. SIU will forego the grape in favor of soft drinks, however.

Ficocelli said he'd like to hear from any area musicians competent for solo spots with the summer symphony.

"Last summer's concerts were so popular that we want to open them to the public even more this year," he said. "There's no telling how much talent there is around southern Illinois, just waiting for something like this."

Enclosed for the Department of Physics are two copies of the report of the Committee on the Status of the Department of Physics, dated June 1964. The report is a summary of the work of the Committee, which was appointed by the Board of Trustees in 1962. The Committee has been working to identify the strengths and weaknesses of the Department and to recommend ways to improve its performance. The report is divided into two main parts: a description of the current state of the Department and a set of recommendations for the future. The first part describes the Department's strengths, including its excellent faculty, its strong research program, and its excellent undergraduate and graduate programs. The second part describes the Department's weaknesses, including its lack of a strong administrative structure, its lack of a strong financial base, and its lack of a strong public relations program. The recommendations are designed to address these weaknesses and to ensure the Department's long-term success.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June--Gerold Hanford, Belleville (7901 W. Washington) has been selected for an eight-week summer internship in livestock marketing at the St. Louis National Stockyards, National Stockyards, Ill. He is a junior majoring in agriculture industries at Southern Illinois University.

Hanford will begin work June 22. The purpose of the internship, according to Walter Wills, SIU marketing specialist, is "to provide practical training and experience to a student in livestock marketing." Such programs are designed to stimulate interest in livestock marketing as a career.

During his eight-week stay, Hanford will participate in various supervised jobs in the stockyard's operations. He will work with the handling of cattle, sheep, and hog shipments, feeding procedures, plant maintenance, and commission firm operations. He will also be acquainted with stockyard administration, its bank, exchange foundation, market news service, and disease control activities. The internship program also is open to selected students from the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

FOR RELEASE THURSDAY A.M., JUNE 18

CARBONDALE, Ill., June 17 -- Southern Illinois University's 84th class of June graduates tonight (June 17) heard the President of Pennsylvania State University sound a challenge to use the nation's "huge reservoir" of productivity and leisure to achieve "quality in life as well as in material possessions."

Speaking to the largest class in Southern's history, 940 graduates, Dr. Eric Walker said "a free society can exist only imperfectly unless men of good will and unusual talents take ....advantage of their opportunities for self-development and then fully accept the social, political and moral responsibilities that go along with this development. A person who can lead others wisely and does not is as blameworthy as the person who could have prevented a crime and does not."

About converting excess production into more public goods and services, better schools, improved highways, slum-clearance and city-planning, Walker said: "This would help us to correct the social imbalance that is responsible for the fact that our functionless-finned automobiles are more advanced than the roads over which they are driven, that our homes are better furnished than our minds, or that our insurance rates are higher than our expenditures for fire and police protection."

Walker cited television as an example of how society misuses the nation's scientific and technological advances. "Commercial television is often infantile, the programs are often presented in extremely bad taste and the western movie has almost driven everything else off the air. But these criticisms are not directed at television, but the way (it) is used by people," he said.

"Like Prometheus, man has managed to steal fire from the gods by achieving a significant amount of control over his own environment--an environment that includes as a major element, the society of man," Walker said. "In this way we have achieved control over our own evolution, This fact gives us tremendous opportunities....and responsibilities. We must remember that Prometheus had to enlist the aid of Minerva, goddess of wisdom, in order to accomplish his feat. We, too, will need her help."

Other highlights of the commencement exercises at SIU's McAndrew Stadium included honorary degree awards to R. Buckminster Fuller, inventor of the geodesic dome, and Jean Piccard, pioneer balloonist and aeronautical engineer. Charles Manfred Thompson, dean emeritus of the University of Illinois College of Commerce and Business Administration, was given the Distinguished Service Award.

Southern's first doctoral degree--a PhD. in speech correction--was given to Paul Roosevelt, East Texas State Teachers College speech correctionist.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June -- Topics ranging from adequate wiring in efficient kitchens to setting an attractive plate will be discussed at a school lunch workshop at Southern Illinois University July 6-10.

The administrators and food handlers of school lunch programs in this area will hear food and kitchen specialists from New York, St. Louis, Chicago and Springfield.

Among them will be John DeLaurenti, new director of the Illinois School Lunch Program and former superintendent of schools at Highland.

Miss Marguerite Robinson, an SIU graduate now with the American Institute of Baking, will talk on integrating nutrition and the school lunch with classroom experiences of children.

The five-day workshop will be conducted by Southern's Technical and Adult Education Division and the School of Home Economics. Coordinator is Dr. Jennie Harper, associate professor in the department of food and nutrition.

Other speakers at the workshop include Leona Pazourek, nutrition consultant to the Illinois Department of Public Health; Jeanette Hampton, school food service director of the Paper Cup and Container Institute, New York; Jean Kenison, home economics director for John Sexton and Co., Chicago, and Clifford Stock, food service consultant with F.T. Hilliker and Associates, St. Louis.

The assistant director, two field supervisors and the chief auditor of the Illinois School Lunch Program will join DeLaurenti for workshop sessions on Wednesday, July 8. Three representatives of the St. Louis Dairy Council will speak on July 10. Speakers from the Southern Illinois area, in addition to a number of SIU faculty members, will include Roy McGee, chief sanitarian of the Jackson County Health Department; Harry Pankey, Carbondale, John Sexton and Co., and Mrs. Helen D. Hall, Harrisburg, assistant district manager of the Social Security Administration.

Carbondale, Ill., June -- A four-day conference on "Work Simplification for the Disabled Homemaker," first of its kind in Illinois, will be conducted July 12-15 at Southern Illinois University.

Designed for persons who provide services for the handicapped, the conference will be partially financed by a $3,505 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Purpose of the conference is to explain and demonstrate methods by which disabled women can do their housework, according to Dr. Betty Jane Johnston, coordinator. Dr. Johnston, chairman of the SIU home and family department, has conducted similar conferences at the University of Connecticut, Michigan State University and Columbia University.

Disabled homemakers from the Carbondale area will describe their home management problems and solutions in a panel discussion. A physician, nurse, home economist, physical therapist, psychologist and other specialists will discuss "The Team Approach to Rehabilitation of the Disabled Homemaker."

Speakers will include Mrs. Julia Judson, consultant for the Handicapped Homemakers Project at the Bellevue Medical Center in New York City; Mrs. Neva Waggoner, research coordinator for the University of Connecticut's Handicapped Homemakers Project, and Mrs. Hannah Pretzer, who teaches classes at Wayne University for disabled homemakers.

Cooperating state agencies are the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, Department of Public Health, Department of Public Welfare, Public Aid Commission, Heart Association and Tuberculosis Association.

The conference will be included in a four-week course for seniors and graduate students called "Work Simplification in Home Management," which started June 22.

[illegible]

The Commission will be pleased to be informed by a letter from the Secretary of the Commission of the results of the investigation.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June -- Seven West Coast manufacturers contacted by a three-man industrial team from Southern Illinois last week are "definitely interested" in establishing branch plants in this area, it was reported today.

The firms are engaged in a variety of manufacturing enterprises, from industrial finishes and varnishes to launching pads for guided missiles, according to Robert S. Henderson, industrial consultant with Southern Illinois University's department of community development.

Henderson called on the seven manufacturers by pre-arranged appointment, accompanied by H. Mason Parker, industrial engineer for Central Illinois Public Service Co., and William C. Westberg, SIU professor of industrial psychology.

One of the brightest prospects for expansion into this area, Henderson reported, is a company planning to build a 325,000 square foot plant in the Midwest.

He said all seven firms were interested in the Midwest because it would give them a more centralized location to their markets and raw materials. Southern Illinois was being given favorable notice because of the state's tax climate and the reserves of available labor here, Henderson said.

The industrial team had followup interviews with two San Francisco companies which were contacted by a group of Southern Illinois businessmen on a West Coast visit last December. The other five companies are based in the Los Angeles area.

Henderson said company executives were particularly impressed by the team effort being exerted for areawide industrial development by the University, a private utility, and a score of towns and counties working through SIU's department of community development. Henderson and Parker presented technical information on area resources and factory sites while Westberg discussed the area labor market and employee testing and training services of the University.

Carbondale, Illinois---More than five-thousand dollars in scholarship funds has been awarded to Southern Illinois University's department of special education for students training to be teachers of the mentally handicapped.

The grants came from the Illinois Women's Club, the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and several Lions Club units.

Dr. Oliver Kolstoe, department chairman, said the money would be distributed among deserving, high-ranking students during the next academic year. The University received 19-hundred dollars from the Illinois Women's Club...one-thousand dollars from the state P-T-A headquarters...12-hundred dollars from Lions Club District 1-C, and 500-dollars each from Lions Clubs at LaGrange and Rosewood.

Scholarship winners of the past year have accepted jobs as teachers of mentally handicapped children at Palatine, DeKalb, Decatur, and Kankakee.

CARBONDALE, Ill.--As if tars, resins and nicotine weren't enough, there is also a charge of static electricity in the cigarettes you smoke.

That report comes from Dr. Charles Brasefield, a Southern Illinois University physicist. He says carbon particles drawn through in the smoke pick up surplus electrons off the tobacco.

However, Brasefield -- who hasn't got the cigarette habit himself--says cancer-conscious smokers shouldn't be jolted by his discovery. There is no evidence, he says, that the static electricity in cigarette smoke has anything to do with lung cancer.

Dear Sirs:

REPLY TO YOUR LETTER

Enclosed, for your information, are two copies of a letter from the Chicago Board of Trade, dated January 24, 1929, in which the Board expresses its opinion regarding the proposed amendment to the Chicago Board of Trade Rules, relating to the method of determining the value of grain for export purposes. The Board's opinion is that the proposed amendment is not in the best interests of the grain trade, and that it should not be adopted. The Board also expresses its opinion that the proposed amendment is not in the best interests of the grain trade, and that it should not be adopted.

REMARKS

The Chicago Board of Trade is a very old and respected organization, and its opinion is of great weight. It is therefore very regrettable that the proposed amendment should have been adopted without the Board's approval. The Board's opinion is based on a long and careful study of the proposed amendment, and it is therefore very likely that its opinion is correct. It is therefore very regrettable that the proposed amendment should have been adopted without the Board's approval.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Federal education agencies have given Southern Illinois University more than 100-thousand dollars this year for the training of prospective scientists -- from pre-college teenagers to P-H.-D candidates.

Grants have been made to Southern to provide free tuition and -- in some cases -- liberal travel and living allowances to students interested in science careers, and to their teachers. There are four such programs now in operation at Southern and at colleges nationwide -- reflecting the concern of President Eisenhower and other government leaders over the shortage of qualified scientists.

This summer, some 300 high school students from 11 states are getting a week's preview of science subjects at S-I-U without tuition charge. The National Science Foundation gave Southern nearly 12-thousand dollars to support the program. Meanwhile, 52 high school biology teachers from 16 states are taking a two-month refresher course...and they are getting paid up to 135-dollars a week for eight weeks, from government funds.

Two other government-supported training programs involve: student participation in science research projects...and fellowships for graduate students interested in teaching college science. The four fellowship winners -- to be selected this fall -- will get 66-hundred dollars or more for three years of study toward their P-H.-D degrees in microbiology.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A new program is being adopted at Southern Illinois University for students preparing to be teachers.

In the future, students will leave the S-I-U campus for three months during their senior year to do their practice teaching in public schools all over Southern Illinois. Students preparing to teach agriculture, home economics, kindergarten-primary, and elementary education will be effected by the new program this fall. After a three-year transition period, all prospective teachers will spend part of their senior year in the public schools.

In the past, students have done their practice teaching at the University School on the campus...in Carbondale...or in nearby communities to which they could commute. But Dr. Charles Neal, director of teacher training, says the University will have 600 student teachers this fall -- far too many to be accommodated for practice teaching in schools near the campus. ##### -30-

CARBONDALE, Ill., July -- What women learn in two short courses next week at Southern Illinois University will definitely go to their heads.

The courses, arranged by the department of clothing and textiles, will be devoted wholly to hatmaking under the supervision of Mrs. Bea Mansfield, founder and director of the Fashion Millinery School in St. Louis. She has taught similar courses at SIU twice before.

An elementary course will be offered Monday (July 13) through Wednesday noon. For those unable to take the day course, another elementary class will be conducted from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The advanced course will be taught from 1 p.m. Wednesday through Friday. Each course offers one quarter hour of college credit.

Persons planning to enroll may obtain further information from the SIU School of Home Economics. Students are asked to bring their sewing equipment to the first class session.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July -- Two hundred clergymen, rural leaders, and educators are expected to attend a three-day American Country Life Conference at Southern Illinois University starting Sunday (July 12).

The goal of the Conference is the development of better social, economic, and cultural programs for rural life. The conference will consist of a series of lectures and panel discussions in the SIU Agriculture Building.

Registration will be from noon until 6 p.m. Sunday at Lentz Hall.

Among the featured speakers are Dr. Paul Miller, vice president, Michigan State University; Richard W. Poston, director of the SIU Community Development Institute, and Dr. Roy C. Buck, associate professor of rural sociology, Pennsylvania State University.

Monday afternoon conference members will be taken on a tour of Southern's campus. Key speaker at a Monday night banquet will be A. W. Tenney, executive director of the Agricultural Hall of Fame, Kansas City. State and national awards will be presented to individuals selected for outstanding contributions to rural leadership in the past year.

The conference will conclude Tuesday night (July 14) with a barbecue.

East St. Louis, Ill, July 10 --- To accomodate students planning to attend one of the six state-supported universities in Illinois, Southern Illinois University's Southwestern Illinois Campus has scheduled guidance tests at its Alton and East St. Louis centers during July and August.

Dr. Howard V. Davis, supervisor of student affairs at Alton, has announced tests will be given there on July 15 and August 3.

Tests will be given at the East St. Louis center on July 14, July 28, August 13, 21 and 29, according to Thomas D. Evans, student affairs supervisor at East St. Louis.

Both supervisors pointed out that a prospective college student may take the examinations at any one of the state schools, not necessarily at the university he plans to attend.

The tests are designed to aid faculty members in counseling students, as a basis for awarding scholarships and for placement in English and mathematics classes. Taking them in advance will expedite the student's matriculation this fall, Davis and Evans said. The examinations will be held at the respective centers from 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July -- A health education survey conducted last year in Paducah, Ky., by two Southern Illinois University professors has received a top award from the American Public Relations Association.

The four-phase project, which had the approval of the McCracken County Medical Society, measured the effectiveness of communications media in disseminating information about a health problem.

The award, a "silver anvil," was presented to the American Osteopathic Association, which financed the study. No other "silver anvils" were awarded in the field of education.

Sheldon S. Steinberg, assistant professor of health education, directed field interviews and media campaigns and Eugene D. Fitzpatrick, guidance department chairman, directed statistical work.

The study will be published this fall in the American Journal of Public Health.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July -- Southern Illinois University held onto some of its tax dollars this month by covering campus bare spots with free bluegrass.

The bare spots came from heavy foot traffic, erosion and construction work during the past school year. The bluegrass -- three acres of it -- came from nearby Southern Illinois Airport, where it stood in the way of a new paved runway under construction.

University officials arranged to have the gras cut in long strips about two inches thick. Workmen hauled it to the campus and unrolled it like carpeting atop the bare ground. Timely rains have helped the transplanted sod flourish.

The new grass is most noticeable around the new Home Economics Building, which is nearing completion. Sod also was laid down around Old Main and Thompson Point residence halls. Even the football field was patched up.

Permission to salvage the grass was granted SIU by the Southern Illinois Airport Authority and the runway contractor, Franklin Asphalt Company of Benton.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July--The study of one of the most important aspects of man's existence — economics — is neglected in many public schools today, claims a Southern Illinois University faculty member.

Gordon Brunhild, assistant professor of economics, made the statement in connection with a two-week Economic Education Workshop to be held at SIU beginning Monday (Aug. 3).

"Too often economic education on the grammar school level is limited to a trip to the store, post office or bank," Brunhild said. "The emphasis in social studies taught in high school is almost always non-economic, despite the fact that most political issues are of economic origin."

The SIU workshop, designed primarily for elementary and secondary teachers, is an attempt to do something about this neglect, Brunhild said. It is sponsored by the University in cooperation with the Joint Council on Economic Education and the Illinois Council of Economic Education.

The course carries four quarter hours of graduate or undergraduate credit. Persons may enroll on the opening day.

Brunhild said no special knowledge of economics is required for admission to the course.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July -- John Dewey's influence on American education will be demonstrated Aug. 6 at Southern Illinois University when a typical elementary school classroom of the early 1900's is contrasted with today's.

Called "Half-Century Change in the Classroom," the demonstration is scheduled for 8:55 to 10:10 a.m. at Furr Auditorium in University School. The presentation is open to the public.

Thirty seventh grade pupils enrolled this summer at University School will make up the demonstration classes. R.J. Fligor, associate professor of education, will teach the "class of 1909," emphasizing oral recitation, discipline and homework. The present-day class will be taught by Mrs. Mabel Lane Bartlett, who will stress group planning and participation, variety of sources and methods, and integration of the curriculum.

Douglas E. Lawson and Arthur E. Lean of the department of educational administration and supervision will point out differences and conduct a question period at the close of the demonstration.

The program is part of SIU's John Dewey Centennial Celebration, honoring the memory of the famed educator and philosopher on the 100th anniversary of his birth. Two more addresses in a lecture series are scheduled for October.

CARBONDALE, Ill., July--"The Most Happy Fella," hit musical comedy which ran for 678 performances on Broadway, will be produced at Southern Illinois University Aug. 7-8.

The musical, a production of SIU's Summer Opera Workshop in cooperation with the Southern Players, student drama group, features Bob Walker of Herrin and Jane Crusius of El Paso, Ill., in the leading roles. It is being staged by Dr. Sherwin Abrams, assistant professor of drama, with music under the direction of William Taylor, director of the workshop.

"The Most Happy Fella" was a hit of the 1955-56 New York drama season. Frank Loesser, author of such plays as "Guys and Dolls" and "Where's Charley?" wrote the entire show--music, lyrics and book. The musical is a free adaption of Sidney Howard's Pulitzer prize-winning play, "They Knew What They Wanted."

"The Most Happy Fella" differs from most Broadway musicals in that most of the plot is carried forward in song with very few spoken lines. The story evolves from the love of a well-to-do, sixtyish Italian grape farmer, played by Walker, for a waitress he sees in a restaurant. Tony Esposito, the grape farmer, begins a "mail order love affair" with the waitress, Rosabella (Miss Crusius).

Realizing, when she writes and asks for a picture of him, that his age will be against him, Tony sends her as a picture of himself the photo of a handsome young friend, Joe, played by Bob Green of Berkeley, Mo. When Rosabella discovers the ruse after coming to Tony's house in the Napa Valley, Cal., she becomes irate and threatens to leave. Tony, however, has had a bad automobile accident while hurrying to meet Rosabella at the train, and begs her to marry him. Moved by this request, which seems almost to be his last, Rosabella consents. Tony recovers and Rosabella comes to discover that she loves the old gentleman for himself.

Hit songs from the show include "Standing on the Corner," "Joey," and "The Most Happy Fella."

Walker, a music major and veteran performer on the SIU musical stage, has appeared in several musicals at SIU including "Carousel" and "Finian's Rainbow." This is Miss Crusius' first appearance in a major production. A sophomore, she was seen last winter in a workshop production of Menotti's "The Telephone." Bob Green, junior music major, also appeared in "The Telephone," as well as in "La Boheme" and last summer's Opera Workshop production, "Oklahoma!"

Others in the cast, which numbers more than 45, include Deloris Dollens of Mt. Vernon as Cleo, a waitress friend of Rosabella; Linda McDaniel, Metropolis sophomore, as Marie, Tony's sister; Gene Horner, Mounds sophomore, as Ciccio; Eddie Kappus, Fairfield, as Herman, and Wayne Stevers, Mound City, as Pasquale.

"The Most Happy Fella" bears a special relation to southern Illinois, since Jo Sullivan, who created the role of Rosabella, is from Mounds. Miss Sullivan recently married the show's composer, Frank Loesser.

This is the final production on the Southern Players' summer bill.

"The Most Happy Fella" will be shown at Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. both nights. Single admissions are $1. Currently being seen at the Playhouse is the Paul Osborn comedy, "Morning's at Seven."

Carbondale, Illinois--An estimated 450 students will be candidates for degrees at Southern Illinois University's summer commencement exercises August 14th. It will be the largest summer graduating class in the University's history.

The commencement speaker will be Dr. Robert Buzzard (Buz-ZAHRD), former president of Eastern Illinois University who is now a distinguished visiting professor at S-I-U.

Carbondale, Illinois--Twenty-seven teachers, representing 21 widely-scattered nations--from Australia to Zanzibar--will be studying Southern Illinois University's vocational education programs this fall.

Selected by the ministries of education in their home countries, they will spend three months on the campus sitting in on class sessions and taking part in seminars. John E. Grinnell, dean of S-I-U's College of Education, says the visitors will be particularly interested in Southern's programs in home economics, commerce, industrial arts and in the Vocational-Technical Institute.

Carbondale, Illinois--The site of an old Indian camp in Union County which is in the path of the new federal highway from Chicago to Cairo is being excavated by archaeologists.

Melvin Fowler, newly-appointed curator of North American archaeology at Southern Illinois University, says the location--known as the Aida site,--belongs to the Archaic period, dating between 2,000 and 3,000 B.C.

The excavation is being carried on under a federal-state archaeological salvage program connected with the construction of new interstate highways. Such work in Illinois is under the supervision of archaeologists from S-I-U, the University of Illinois, and the Illinois State Museum.

CARBONDALE, Illinois---Ninety adults afflicted with cerebral palsy will start a two-week vacation at a specially designed camp on Little Grassy Lake in southern Illinois August 16th.

The cerebral palsy victims--about half of them permanent wheelchair cases--will enjoy swimming, boating, horseback riding and other outdoor recreation at the Little Giant Camp constructed and staffed by Southern Illinois University. The camp buildings feature ramps instead of steps, and they are linked by smooth walks suitable for wheelchairs.

Nearly 300 physically handicapped and mentally retarded children have already used the Little Giant camp this summer.

CARBONDALE, Illinois---The final performance of the Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella," by Southern Illinois University music and drama students will be at 8 p.m. tonight (Saturday) in Shryock Auditorium.

The production, combining the talents of student members of the Southern Playhouse and those enrolled in a summer Opera Workshop, has been in rehearsal since the summer term opened in mid-June. "The Most Happy Fella" is the story of a an elderly Italian immigrant who uses a fake photograph to woo and win a young bride through the mails.

Carbondale, Illinois--A government agency has awarded nearly 128-thousand dollars to Southern Illinois University's Rehabilitation Institute for the training of counselors to the handicapped during the next school year. S-I-U's training program for rehabilitation counselors is the second largest among 33 such college programs in the country.

Under the new grants from the U. S. Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, the Institute will be able to accept 24 counselor trainees for a two-year graduate program...and to offer a series of six-week short courses for 45 professional rehabilitation counselors.

Carbondale, Illinois--Lack of a new wardrobe should not prevent women students from starting to college this fall. A study conducted at Southern Illinois University shows that seven out of ten garments brought to the campus by freshmen women were the same clothes they wore in high school.

A survey of 200 women students made by Dr. Adeline Hoffman, chairman of the clothing and textiles department at S-I-U, also showed that more than half the women made part of their wardrobe themselves.

Dr. Hoffman learned, too, that the average girl spent 275 dollars on clothing during her first year on the campus. That was the average. The range was from 107 dollars to almost 600 dollars.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Aug. -- The Southern Illinois University radio station WSRV (91.9 megacycles) will begin a new daily program of music for five weeks beginning Monday (Aug. 16), according to Ralph Becker, station supervisor.

The program, known as the WSRV Festival of Fine Music, will be aired from 6 to 10 p.m. daily. It will feature a wide variety of carefully selected high fidelity recordings of the world's most beautiful music, Becker says. The feature will replace temporarily the station's variety programs during the five weeks the SIU student operators are on vacation.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Aug. -- The largest summer graduating class in Southern Illinois University's 80-year history will receive diplomas at commencement exercises in McAndrew Stadium Friday night (Aug. 14).

Dr. Robert G. Buzzard, former president of Eastern Illinois University and now distinguished visiting professor of geography at SIU, will address the 458 degree candidates.

The exercises will be broadcast beginning at 6:45 over the University radio station, WSRV-FM. Buren Robbins, radio-television department chairman, will be the commentator.

The ceremony will follow a concert by the SIU summer band, under the direction of Donald Canedy. In case of rain, the exercises will take place in Shryock Auditorium.

More than 40 per cent of the graduates will be awarded advanced degrees. Some two-thirds of the master's degree candidates will receive their degrees in education.

Summer commencement will wind up activity on Southern's campus until New Student Week Sept. 18-22.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Aug. -- The 1959-60 cooperative beef cattle performance test at Southern Illinois University will begin Sept. 26, according to an SIU animal industries department announcement.

This will be the second series of tests to provide cooperating beef cattle breeders with information on the gaining ability and performance of purebred bull calves under uniform conditions of feeding and care.

Entry applications from interested beef cattle breeders in the area are being accepted through Saturday (Aug. 15). They are being taken in two groups: either as sire lots of four bull calves from one sire, or as entries of one to four bull calves without restriction on uniformity of breeding. The latter group is for the convenience of breeders who do not have large enough herds to meet the qualifications of the first group. Information may be obtained by writing to the SIU animal industries department.

Pen space for 80 to 100 animals is available in the testing quarters at the SIU beef cattle center. Through an entry fee and subsequent payments at the time animals are delivered, the participating breeders finance the program. Cost for feed, care, and record-keeping is approximately $100 per animal. All calves undergo a 28-day preliminary feeding period to equalize pre-test differences before the 141 days test period begins. All the calves are weighed individually every 28 days and are scored at the beginning and end of the testing period for condition and conformation.

The information obtained is helpful to herd owners in selecting replacements for purebred herd sires and for commercial herd bulls. The results of each test are tabulated and analyzed for publication.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A Southern Illinois University professor winds up a 46-year career at the University today (Friday).

Fount G. Warren has taught nearly 25-thousand students and has a service record longer than that of any other faculty member. He joined the staff in 1913 when the campus consisted of four buildings...and he has watched the University climb to 45th in the nation.

The Warren tradition will be carried on at Southern by the grandson of the 70-year-old education professor. Fount Warren the Third is helping supervise a training project on the campus for the mentally retarded.

(RELEASE AFTER 7 P.M. FRIDAY (AUGUST 14))

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS-- The former president of Eastern Illinois University -- speaking at a commencement exercise Friday night -- had some things to say about the proposed single board of trustees to govern all of Illinois' tax-supported universities.

Dr. Robert G. Buzzard offered no arguments for or against the plan...but he cautioned that consideration should be given to what he called certain "deviations" from academic tradition in Illinois' institutions of higher learning. These deviations, including Southern Illinois University's area services program and its vocational training, might indicate new pathways for the educational future, he said.

Buzzard also told an S-I-U graduating class of 450 that the single board plan would be studied and presented to the legislature in the next session. The time until January, 1961, he said, "is indeed short for considering an educational problem of this caliber."

With the commencement address, Buzzard closed out his 50th year as an educator in Illinois schools, including service with five of the six state-supported universities. He was president of Eastern Illinois University for 23 years.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Southern Illinois University has run out of places to put its students again this fall. This in spite of the fact that spacious new housing units are going up rapidly on the Carbondale campus.

Trouble is, says William Rogge (ROGG-ee), S-I-U housing director, construction has not been able to keep pace with growing enrollments. New facilities for 228 students are scheduled for completion this fall, but enrollment on the Carbondale campus will increase by at least 500.

Housing for married students is the most critical, Rogge says, although campus residence units for single women have been booked up since last spring and the off-campus housing list -- in Rogge's words -- has been picked to the bone.

Single men students are having the least difficulty finding housing, Rogge reports. The best facilities are already rented, but a few places are still available both on and off the campus.

The University expects to have 8-thousand students on the Carbondale campus this fall and 4-thousand in residence centers in Alton and East St. Louis.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- The first public showing of a new Southern Illinois University film will be the focal point of S-I-U's exhibit at the DuQuoin State Fair, which begins a week from Sunday.

The half-hour film, entitled "Year of the Saluki", will be projected on a large T-V screen on the second floor of the Fair grandstand. It depicts the highlights of an academic year as experienced by two typical students.

The University also will have a rocket and missile display which has been arranged by the S-I-U Rocket Society.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Sept. -- Property and casualty insurance writers in the area have been asked to help set up their own self-improvement course at Southern Illinois University.

SIU's Division of Technical and Adult Education has announced plans to begin a night-class program leading to the title, Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter. The CPCU certification means as much to an insurance man as CPA does to an accountant. If interest should warrant it, the course will be made available in several southern Illinois communities.

Insurance men covered by the property-casualty label have been asked to attend an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday Sept. 17) at Furr Auditorium, University School. Courses which are part of the CPCU certification program will be discussed and class sites and registration schedules will be arranged.

Instructors for the program will be drawn from the SIU faculty and insurance organizations. The first authorized CPCU examination will be given to students next spring.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Sept. -- Nearly 3,000 new students will get their introduction to campus life at Southern Illinois University this weekend in a series of social events and briefing sessions with faculty and upperclassmen.

The newcomers, most of them fresh out of high school, will have a full week to learn their way around and to prep for college classes with a battery of tests before regular classes begin here next Thursday (Sept. 24). At that time, with the return of last year's students, total University enrollment is expected to hit 12,000 here and at SIU Residence Centers at Alton and East St. Louis.

President Delyte W. Morris will greet the newcomers for a traditional watermelon feast in the garden of his home Friday night. Afterwards, both male and female students can get a line on campus fashions at an 8 p.m. style show.

At a Wheels' Night Saturday, a series of booths will be set up in the Agriculture Building to acquaint new students with the activities of social and educational campus organizations they may wish to join. In an outdoor cafe setting Saturday night, a combo will provide music for dancing around the fountain beside Old Main.

The annual picnic for parents Sunday afternoon will be held for the first time at a new campus lake ringed around the Thompson Point Residence Halls.

Orientation sessions, textbook rental and the like will continue until 4 p.m. Tuesday, giving the newcomers a one-day breather before the serious business of classes and study begins.

A four-hour program on Monday and Tuesday afternoons over Southern's radio station, WSRV-FM, will feature interviews with new students in front of the station's studios. Musical selections will be interspersed in the program which will run from 1 to 5 p.m. both days.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Some 3,000 new students are spending their first weekend on the Southern Illinois University campus, getting a preview of college life before classes start next Thursday.

When classes do start, the University expects to have a record enrollment of 12-thousand students on the Carbondale campus and at Residence Centers in Alton and East St. Louis.

The new students are being kept busy with tests, campus tours and briefings by faculty members and upperclassmen. Weekend activities will be mostly social, including a Saturday night dance in a cafe setting outside Old Main...and the traditional Parents Day Picnic Sunday afternoon. This year, the picnic will be held on the new campus lake ringed around the Thompson Point Residence Halls.

Carbondale, Illinois--R. Buckminster Fuller, the world-famous designer and inventor of the geodesic dome, has accepted an appointment as a research professor at Southern Illinois University.

Though he has lectured at most of the major U-S design and engineering schools, this is the first time that the 63-year-old Fuller has taken a permanent university assignment. At Southern, he will pursue his own research while directing an S-I-U program for graduate students.

Fuller designed the world's largest clearspan structure--the dome building which houses the Union Tank Car Company of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He also created the dome which enclosed the recent U-S exhibition in Moscow. Fuller recently proposed a two-mile wide plastic dome which could cover New York City to provide year-round environmental control...and the idea is getting serious consideration.

The designer's first public lecture on the S-I-U campus will be October 14th when he will talk about his recent visit to Russia.

Carbondale, Illinois--The Rehabilitation Institute of Southern Illinois University has been awarded 92-thousand dollars by state and federal agencies to improve campus facilities for severely handicapped students.

The money will be used for such construction as wheelchair ramps in campus buildings and an asphalt recreation area for wheelchair students...and for new equipment. In the past three years, S-I-U has been granted 221-thousand dollars by state and federal rehabilitation agencies for a program aimed at inducing handicapped students to attend college.

Carbondale, Illinois--The opening of fall term classes on the Southern Illinois University campus yesterday (Thursday) also meant the opening of a four-story Home Economics building the length of a city block.

The first floor, portions of the upper levels, and a penthouse apartment for students of home management have been completed under a two-million, 200-hundred thousand dollar state appropriation. The remainder will be finished when funds become available.

The four departments of the School of Home Economics -- clothing and textiles, food and nutrition, home and family, and home economics education -- will share the new building with other S-I-U departments needing classroom space.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Sept.--A labor union grant of $8500 for continuance and improvement of a joint project for plumber apprentices related training at Southern Illinois University was reported jointly today by John McDermott, director of the SIU Labor Institute and by the University Division of Technical and Adult Education.

The grant was made by the United Association of Plumbers and Pipefitters Unions to the joint educational committee of the Egyptian Master Plumber Association and the plumbers Local 160.

Started in 1952 at the University's Southern Acres Campus, the apprentice related training program is administered jointly by the Committee, the Labor Institute and the T. and A.E. Division. McDermott said the primary purpose of the grant is to provide funds for purchase of new equipment and to maintain supplies necessary to continuance of the project.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Sept. -- A permanent research station in one of America's unique biological melting pots will be set up by Southern Illinois University under a dollar-an-acre lease from the Trojan Powder Company.

Announced here last night, the lease agreement will give SIU scientists rights to develop research programs and facilities on 236 acres of Trojan land in the Pine Hills area near Wolf Lake in Union County. The lease will run for 20 years with an option to renew.

The station will be headquarters for advanced field research in zoology, geology, botany and forestry. It will be the only such operating research facility in the mid-Mississippi region. The University of Minnesota operates one at the Mississippi headwaters and the University of Louisiana runs another on the river marshes near the Gulf of Mexico.

President Delyte Morris, announcing the arrangement at a regular seminar of SIU's Mississippi Valley Investigations Staff, termed the development "a major step in the University's research programs and a significant contribution to biological science." He said the station could become "a midwestern Woods Hole, for studying fresh water and terrestrial forms of life." The Oceanographic Institute at Woods Hole, Mass., is a world-famed salt-water research center.

Morris called the token rental "an educational investment of great possibilities."

Dr. Harvey Fisher, SIU zoology department chairman who first proposed the Pine Hills research station, said the area is chiefly remarkable for its vast and varied assortment of North American plant and animal species.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Sept. 10 - A permanent research station in one of America's unique biological museum areas will be set up by Southern Illinois University under a dollar-a-year lease from the Tropic Powder Company. Announced here last night, the lease agreement will give SIU scientists rights to develop research programs and facilities on 125 acres of Tropic land in the Pine Hills area near Wolf Lake in Union County. The lease will run for 10 years with an option to renew.

The station will be headquartered at a research field station in ecology, botany, zoology and forestry. It will be the only field station research facility in the mid-Mississippi region. President Dwight D. Eisenhower, announcing the establishment of a regular station of SIU's Mississippi Valley Research Station, termed the development a major step in the University's research programs and a significant contribution to biological sciences. It said the station could become a midwestern focus for studying fresh water and terrestrial forms of life. The Mississippi River at Wolf Lake, Illinois, is a world-famous biological research center. It is called the "biological laboratory" of the world.

Dr. Harry H. Henshaw, SIU biology department chairman and first president of the Tropic Powder Company, said the area is chiefly responsible for the area and would be a center of North American plant and animal studies.

The Pine Hills environment includes dry upland forests, swampy Mississippi bottoms, rock bluffs and lakes. It is known throughout the U.S. as a meeting place for plants and animals at the extreme edge of their habitat ranges in all four directions. Because of such geological events as crustal upheavals, glaciation and the rise and fall of the inland sea, the region abounds in hundreds of different flowers and plants, from northern Nannyberrys and Virginia willows to southern pines and Colorado columbines.

Unusual animal life such as the blind cave fish and Anhinga (Snake Bird) and an abundance of poisonous snakes have long made the Pine Hills a popular collecting spot. Fisher said one of the objects of the station would be to preserve this natural population for resident research and instruction.

The center will be open to scientists and students from all over the U.S. and Canada and development will include permanent camp-type housing and laboratories for researchers. Fisher will be part of a four-man committee organized to administer the station. Others are Stanley Harris, geology department chairman; John Voigt, associate professor of botany and John Hosner, associate professor of forestry. The overall project will be part of SIU's continuing research under the heading of Mississippi Valley Investigations.

Invitations to use the station and cooperate in its development will go out soon from President Morris to the heads of other midwestern universities. "It is our wish," he said, "that this rich biological resource be open to all scholars who may profit from it."

There is no doubt that the above is a very good example of a well-organized and well-written report.

and as the only person who has been able to do so, I have been able to do so.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Oct. -- Southern Illinois University now is a member of the Human Relations Area Files, one of the nation's major sources of research findings in the field of human behavior sciences, according to SIU Library Director Ralph E. McCoy.

In acquiring the file, consisting of more than one and one-half million documents relating to some 170 world cultures from the preliterate Copper Eskimo to contemporary industrial societies, such as Soviet Russia, SIU becomes one of 17 American universities participating in the program. The Universities of Chicago, Iowa, Indiana, and Michigan are other participating institutions in the midwest.

The file, filling approximately 200 double-compartment drawers, will be housed in the Social Studies division of Morris Library when it arrives in a month or two from New Haven, Conn., where the file program has been developing in a special center at Yale University. Several departments in the SIU College of Liberal Arts and Sciences have urged acquisition of the files for faculty and graduate student research, McCoy says. The materials, costing approximately $22,000, are being purchased on a long-term payment contract through the SIU Foundation.

Included in the files are complete texts of thousands of documents, books, journal articles, unpublished manuscripts, and field reports gathered by university, government, and private research agencies. Many are scarce items or materials unavailable for purchase in the original form. (more)

(The original manuscript for purposes in the original form.)

McCoy points out that they are the scholarly product of psychologists, anthropologists, sociologists, economists, and political scientists examining the various cultures, both literate and preliterate. Included are some 25,000 manuscript pages of translations from foreign languages.

The material is printed on convenient five-by-eight-inch cards which are coded by culture and by more than 700 categories. Thus, McCoy explains, a research worker interested in burial customs among South American Indian tribes may find all such material arranged together. Similarly, he may find together all materials relating to a given country or culture.

First organized in 1949, the file is being added to continuously through various grants and government contracts. Headquarters for assembling, editing, translating, and coding the material is in a special center at Yale University. The program, most extensive of its kind ever undertaken, represents the fulfillment of a hope of the pioneer anthropologist, William Graham Sumner, who, during the first decade of the present century, advocated a "laboratory without walls" in which the social scientist could examine human behavior related to the living background of each of the societies known to man.

McCoy says a full-time assistant, trained by a member of the Yale center staff in the complexities of filing and maintaining the materials, will be in charge of the files at SIU.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Oct. -- The federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation has awarded Southern Illinois University's department of speech correction a $13,819 grant to inaugurate a graduate training program in speech pathology and audiology.

To be directed by Dr. Hugo Gregory, assistant professor, the program will provide yearly traineeships worth approximately $2,400 to masters degree students interested in adult speech and hearing rehabilitation. The trainees will work in professional rehabilitation settings at such locations as the Marion VA Hospital, SIU's own Clinical Services Center, extension clinics throughout southern Illinois and the summer programs for the handicapped at SIU's Little Grassy Lake camps.

The program is the second at SIU sponsored mostly by OVR grants. The government agency has supported a graduate traineeship program in rehabilitation counseling for the past five years.

The speech and hearing grant will cover the 1959-60 fiscal year and the OVR has agreed to sponsor support for another year after that. The University will contribute $5,000 to the program's first-year budget.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Oct. -- Richard W. Poston, director of Southern Illinois University's community development department since it was organized in 1953, was named a research professor by the University Wednesday (Sept. 30) so he may devote full time to research and consultation work.

SIU President Delyte W. Morris said the new position will give Poston an opportunity to "demonstrate the kind of national leadership in the community development field that only he can give."

Morris also announced that Robert E. Knittel, Poston's assistant director for the past two years, will take over as chairman of the community development department effective immediately.

Poston becomes the second research professor on the SIU faculty. Geodesic dome designer R. Buckminster Fuller was appointed just two weeks ago with the same title. Poston will be attached to the Graduate School.

Praised by Morris as "a creative thinker, with imagination and a magnetic personality," Poston has preached the community development gospel in universities and cities from coast to coast and in two books, "Small Town Renaissance" and "Democracy Is You." More than a score of Southern Illinois towns, ranging in size from Bridgeport to East St. Louis, are currently engaged in full-scale civic improvement programs and 20 others are carrying out special citizen action projects under the direction of Poston's staff.

President Morris said that Poston has been overburdened with the duties of administration of his department, supervision of far-flung field operations, and constant demands on his time by organizations from coast to coast for speaking engagements and consulting roles. He is a member of numerous national committees, including chairman of the community development section of the National University Extension Association. He also established the criteria and acts as judge for the international community achievement contests sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The text is organized into several paragraphs, with some lines appearing to be headings or subheadings. The content is too faded to transcribe accurately.]

Morris said that Poston's efforts in southern Illinois represented "one of the most significant developments I know of" and that "we will see in our day a reorientation in state universities which will be profoundly influenced by the pioneering approach here."

Poston, a graduate of the University of Montana, was a freelance writer when he became interested in an early program of rural community rehabilitation known as the Montana Study and directed by Philosopher Baker Brownell. His book, "Small Town Renaissance," traces the history of that project. In 1949, Poston was called to the University of Washington to start a Bureau of Community Development. There were 80 towns on the waiting list for his services there when he came to SIU in 1953 at the urging of Brownell, then director of the University's Area Services program.

Knittel, formerly public relations director of the St. Louis Housing Rehabilitation Project, joined Poston's staff in 1956. For the past year, he has been directing the department office in East St. Louis where a development program is being carried on under the banner of Community Progress, Inc.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Governor William Stratton has proclaimed a "Southern Illinois Day" -- Saturday, October 17th -- when Homecoming activities will be held at Southern Illinois University.

Citing S-I-U as "one of the most important institutions of higher learning in the state," the governor's proclamation urges proper observance of the annual "Southern Illinois Day" on Southern's Homecoming.

Highlight of the day on the campus will be a football game between Southern and Eastern Illinois University, followed by a concert, a stage play -- The Diary of Anne Frank, a Homecoming dance, and a musical stage show featuring vocalist Joni James. The traditional Homecoming parade through downtown Carbondale is set for 9 a.m.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Sixteen bankers from India -- who are spending three months touring in this country -- will get their perspective of small town life in America from visits to Herrin and Carbondale, Illinois.

The bankers will begin a four-day visit to southern Illinois October 27th, when they will arrive at Southern Illinois University. They will study agriculture, banking, manufacturing, marketing and allied activities in the southern Illinois area.

Their American tour, sponsored by the International Cooperation Administration includes visits to a number of large cities -- from New York to Los Angeles -- but southern Illinois will provide them their only glimpse of life in the small community.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Some of southern Illinois' best amateur and professional photographers will converge on Harrisburg this weekend for three days of picture-taking.

They will be attending the fourth annual Southern Illinois University Photo-journalism Workshop, which has been held in previous years in Makanda, Anna, and Cairo. In Harrisburg, the photographers will spend the weekend developing picture stories on the social and economic life of the community. ##### --eh--

CARBONDALE, Ill., Oct. - - The Southern Illinois University Press will publish "Benjamin West and the Taste of His Times," by Grose Evans on Oct. 29 as the fifth in a series of books slated for fall release.

Limited to an edition of 1500 finely-bound volumes, the book will include a separate section of 64 pages containing 73 reproductions of paintings by West and some other masters. (List price of the book in an attractive slipcase will be $22.50).

Although a native American, West lived in London during his productive career from 1763 until his death in 1820. Painting and advising young painters, West was a popular artist who gained favor in the court of King George III. Evans discusses West's early training in America and shows by an analysis of the painter's work that he was an illustrator of the aesthetic tastes of his time.

Evans is assistant curator in charge of educational work at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C. He has been a lecturer in fine arts at Catholic University, American University, and George Washington University.

The four other books issued earlier this fall by the University Press are: "An Annotated Guide to Free and Inexpensive Health Instruction Materials," by John R. Lefevre and Donald N. Boydston of SIU; "A James Joyce Miscellany: Second Series," edited by Marvin Magalaner; "The Ordeal of Southern Illinois University," by George K. Plochmann, SIU faculty member; and "University Portrait," a portfolio of nine paintings by Mrs. Plochmann.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS, Oct. - - The jet age theme will dominate the sixth annual Carbondale Standard Fall Flower Show at Southern Illinois University next Sunday (Oct. 25). The show, presented by the Carbondale Council of Garden Clubs in cooperation with the SIU Division of Area Services, will be open to the public from 1 until 8 p.m. in Muckelroy Auditorium, SIU Agriculture building.

Mrs. C. T. Jeffries, general chairman of the show, says entries will be accepted at the auditorium from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Saturday (Oct. 24) and until 9:30 a.m. Sunday. In addition to first, second, third, and honorable mention ribbons as merited in each class, there will be a Tricolor award to the highest scoring blue ribbon winner in certain groups of artistic classes. A sweepstakes award will go to the exhibitor with the greatest number of blue ribbons in horticulture. There also will be green seal awards for special exhibits, a sweepstakes award for the garden club with the greatest number of points as well as an award of distinction and an award of merit for certain attainments.

Labeled "A Jet's Eye View of American Cities," the show's artistic division will feature a wide variety of floral arrangements representing a dominant feature of various cities throughout the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii. There will be a horticulture division for displays of fine specimens of home-grown flowers. Men and junior gardeners will have special sections in which to display their talents as arrangers and flower growers. One section will be open to artistic arrangements and horticultural displays by out-of-town persons- - whether garden club members or not.

The flower show also will include educational and commercial exhibits by florists and SIU departments, and displays of table settings by the five Carbondale garden clubs- -all non-competitive exhibits.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS - - Cook County has become the second largest wellspring of new students for Southern Illinois University.

Fall enrollment records show 637 S-I-U students from Cook County - - second only to Southern's home county of Jackson, which is sending 943 students this term. For Jackson County, this is only six students above the amount at S-I-U last year, while enrollment from Cook County has doubled since 1957.

The Cook County representation at S-I-U has now overtaken that of both Williamson and Franklin Counties - - traditionally the number one and two producers of students for S-I-U.

Two other far-northern counties, Lake and DuPage, also registered significant increases this year . . . while the southernmost counties of Alexander, Pulaski and Massac showed slight declines.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Oct. -- Sixteen industrial bankers from India will study community and area development programs when they visit southern Illinois under the auspices of the International Cooperation Administration next week.

Their four-day Southern Illinois itinerary was arranged by William J. Tudor, director of Area Services at Southern Illinois University.

The bankers will arrive Tuesday afternoon to tour the SIU campus and to attend a dinner meeting of Southern Illinois, Inc., here. The speaker, Edward Lindsay, editor of Lindsay-Schaub Newspapers, will talk about "Suggestions for Further Area Development."

On Wednesday, they will visit the Fidelity Mine near DuQuoin to inspect the Kolbe Wheel and other new mining equipment and techniques.

The bankers, top officers of banks in Calcutta, Bombay, New Delhi and other leading cities in India, will spend Thursday in St. Louis attending the "Heartland, U.S.A." meeting, which will be devoted to discussion of water resources development in the Mississippi Valley.

Friday, they will be on the SIU campus to hear about a typical long-range civic action campaign conducted by a town with the aid of Southern's department of community development. Among the speakers will be leaders in Flora's "Operation Progress" efforts.

Nelle Hanna, first general chairman of the program at Flora, will detail its operation and describe community improvements it has brought about. The story of how University and power company personnel combined efforts with civic leaders to bring a new industry to Flora will be dramatized by Mayor Norman Bryden; Attorney Ed Benecke; real estate broker Robert Garrison; Robert S. Henderson, SIU's industrial consultant; H. Mason Parker of Central Illinois Public Service Co., and others.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. - - Nearly 31-hundred students on the Southern Illinois University campus at Carbondale are working their way through college.

That's the report on a survey by S-I-U's Student Work Office which says that well over one-third of the students are financing part of their education by jobs that range from driving a bus to scientific research. More than 19-hundred are employed by the University for jobs on the campus. They will average 550-dollars in the next nine months for working an average 70 hours a month.

Frank Adams, director of the Student Work Office, says that 56 percent of the working seniors are in jobs that are related to their major fields of study.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. - - Higher interest rates on borrowed money for both large and small borrowers are predicted in an article in the forthcoming issue of the Southern Illinois Business Bulletin, published by the Southern Illinois University School of Business.

Written by John A. Cochran, associate professor of economics, the article explains that current Federal Reserve policy is one of "tight money" - - interest rates rising and loans at banks becoming harder to get. This policy has been adopted, explains Cochran, as a means of offsetting serious inflation.

"In the immediate period ahead," Cochran writes, "large borrowers like the federal government and large corporations, and small borrowers like you and me, can expect to pay higher interest rates on borrowed money. If you buy large appliances on credit, you can expect that the carrying charges will be higher. If you buy a home and obtain a mortgage, you can expect higher down payment requirements and a higher interest rate on the mortgage."

How long will this trend hold?

"As long as business is booming as it has in recent months," Cochran comments, "the cost of borrowed funds will continue to rise. It is only after the next downturn in business activity that we can expect to see some decline in interest rates. It will not be until we have another economic recession that the Federal Reserve will turn again to an easy money policy as it did in 1957-58."

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. - - Southern Illinois University will be host to a downstate visit of the Illinois Legislative Commission on County Government from Nov. 23 through the 25th.

Irving Howards, SIU assistant professor of government who is serving a second term as special consultant to the Commission, said the trip has been arranged to give the 15-man group an informal "on the spot" look at county government operations in the commission counties of southern Illinois. The Commission will stay at a Marion motel and travel to county seat locations on an SIU bus.

Set up during the 1957-59 biennium, the Commission is primarily concerned with the financial problems of county government operation. As a result of its recommendations this year, the legislature gave counties the power to impose a half-cent sales tax in unincorporated areas and empowered counties under 15,000 in population to boost corporate tax rates by action of their county boards.

Rep. C. L. McCormick of Vienna and Pope County Judge Gerald Trampe, two Commission members, worked with Howards to set up the special trip. On the 23rd, the group will visit Metropolis, Golconda and Vienna. The next day's schedule covers Mound City and Jonesboro and a dinner at the SIU campus. On the 25th the Commission will visit Marion and wind up the tour with a private meeting.

Senate members of the Commission are Albert Bennett, Chicago; Joseph Peterson, Princeton; Daniel Dougherty, Chicago; Herschel Green, West York and Albert Scott, Canton. House members are McCormick, Chairman A. B. McConnell, Woodstock; Bert Baker, Benton; David Glenn, Greenup and Joseph Lelivelt, Chicago.

The group's five public members are Judge Trampe; Wayne Jones, Edwards County states attorney; Dan Brown of Monmouth, former president of the Illinois County Clerks Association; Carl Hunsicker, member of the Livingston County Board, and William McGovern, professor of political science at Northwestern University.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. - - "Famous Writers I Have Known" will be the topic for British novelist and critic David Garnett in a public talk Thursday (Nov. 12) at Southern Illinois University. The lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium.

Garnett, a member of one of Britain's celebrated literary families, is spending November as a visiting lecturer at SIU. In addition to class and seminar appearances, he will participate in the James Joyce-D. H. Lawrence symposia at Southern next week (Nov. 19-20).

Garnett, whose published works include "Lady Into Fox," a novel which marked his literary debut in 1923, and a two-volume autobiography, was a member of London's Bloomsbury Literary Circle. It included Economist John Maynard Keynes, writers E. M. Forster, Clive Bell and Virginia Woolf and Philosopher Bertrand Russell and several other literary personalities. Garnett was also a close friend of D. H. Lawrence.

Garnett grew up in a household where such prominent English authors as John Galsworthy, Joseph Conrad and W. H. Hudson were daily guests.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- Folklore scholar Richard Dorson, author of books on Davy Crockett and other American legends, will be guest speaker at the annual Illinois Folklore Society meeting Friday (Nov. 13) at Southern Illinois University. Dorson's talk on "Three Worlds of the Folklorist" will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Woody Hall Formal Lounge and will be open to the public.

Chairman of the Indiana University folklore committee and professor of history at IU, Dorson is a three degree graduate of Harvard University. He taught at Harvard and Michigan State University before joining the Indiana University faculty in 1957. He has also taught at Tokyo University under a Fulbright lectureship.

Dorson, a former vice-president and associate editor for the American Folklore Society, is the author of "Davy Crockett, American Comic Legend"; "Jonathan Draws the Long Bow"; "Bloodstoppers and Bearwalkers," "American Folklore" and other books.

The lecture will be preceded by a brief business meeting in which the Society's new officers will be elected for the coming year.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS, Nov. - - The housing shortage has prompted Southern Illinois University to double the size of a University trailer court.

Beginning next fall, the Housing Office announced, space will be provided for an additional 53 student-owned trailers. Present trailer space is completely filled, the University reports, and additional applications are expected next year.

Buying trailers has become popular because rooms and apartments are hard to come by, and trailer spaces rent for only 19-dollars a month.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS - - A Southern Illinois University historian agrees with students who think their history books are often dull. C. Harvey Gardiner, who has authored four historical books published this year, says too many of his colleagues worship chronology so much, they don't know how to make their books interesting.

Gardiner says a historian should make his writing entertaining enough for the average reader to enjoy and understand, even if it means borrowing some of the techniques of the novelist. The S-I-U professor is best known for his biographical insights of the prolific American historian William Hickling Prescott.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS - - A training program at Southern Illinois University for the mentally retarded has received another 31-thousand dollar grant from the U. S. Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. The project, begun in 1957, tests mentally retarded teenagers to determine if they are employable and where they might find jobs in business and industry.

Ninety-seven percent of the youths who have been rated as having "employment potential" up to now have gone back to their home communities and found work. The project is under the direction of the University's department of special education.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS - - Five small geodesic domes are the latest additions to Southern Illinois University's Campus Lake recreation area. The domes, each 23 feet in diameter, will serve as shelters for student picnics next year.

The domes are based on geodesic designs of inventor R. Buckminster Fuller, now a research professor in S-I-U's design department. He is also planning to erect a 55-foot dome in Carbondale as a residence.

The Campus Lake development also includes a beach and swimming area, boat house, fishing piers and other facilities. It was created to provide campus recreation for students since most of them are not allowed to bring automobiles to Carbondale.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- The great "cranberry episode" was forced on Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming by a cause in the nation's food and drug laws, according to a former Food and Drug Administration official.

Dr. George Goss, associate professor of physiology at Southern Illinois University, says Flemming has been unjustly criticized for following the law. "Whether a person can eat 15,000 cranberries or none at all is not the point," says Goss. "The law states that no food additive shall be deemed safe when found to induce cancer in man or animals." The government says the weed-killer aminotriazole produced thyroid cancer in rats.

Goss, former assistant branch chief of the Food and Drug Administration in Washington, said the so-called "Delaney Clause" of the food, drug and cosmetic act has placed the government squarely into the cancer-checking business and that under the clause even the remotest trace of a cancer effect from food additives becomes cause for action.

"A majority of the men in Food and Drug would probably feel that something should be done in the way of establishing human tolerances for chemical additives, but as of now the law is the law."

Goss believes the government regulatory agency's duty is clear cut in the law. "Some people are believed to be more susceptible to carcinogenic (cancer) factors than others, and it's the agency's job to look out for the most sensitive person."

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- Two Southern Illinois University scientists have been given permission to collect specimens of "gooney birds" on Midway Island.

Dr. Harvey Fisher, chairman of the S-I-U zoology department, and assistant professor John Downey will leave next week to collect some of the birds -- known officially as the Laysan Albatross -- for S-I-U, Yale University, the Smithsonian Institution and other agencies.

Midway Island is the only spot in the world where the "gooney birds" go during breeding season. Heavy populations of them there have proved to be a major headache to the U.S. Navy's airfield operations, but all efforts to get the birds to nest somewhere else have been fruitless.

Dr. Fisher and Dr. Downey are the only American scientists who have received permission from the Navy this year for a collecting expedition on Midway.

CARBONDALE, ILL., -- A rare collection of newspapers has been given to Southern Illinois University's Morris Library. They comprise one of the three bound volumes in this country of the Philippine resistance paper, the "Morning Times."

In the Filipinos' World War II resistance movement against the Japanese, the newspaper was put out by a small group of journalists who hid typewriters in caves and printed the paper daily on a foot-powered, hand-fed press. Japanese troops were sent out to liquidate the newspaper's carrier boys and several were killed.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- The Southern Illinois Cratorio Society, the Southern Illinois University Choir and selected singers from area high school choirs will take part in the annual Christmas oratorio concert here Dec. 6.

The traditional public program will begin at 3 p.m. in SIU's Shryock Auditorium.

George Frederick Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum," considered by many choral musicians to be his top oratorio achievement, will be the major work on this year's program. Singing solo roles will be Catherine Akos, former Boston Symphony Orchestra and Bucharest Opera mezzo-soprano; Dr. Carol Cook MacClintock, and William Taylor, voice instructors at SIU, and Larry Jarvis, sophomore tenor from Hematite, Mo., who will be the first SIU student singer ever featured in the concert.

Conductor Robert Hines, SIU choral director, said some 280 voices will be used in the program. The second half of the concert will include a performance of "Hymn for Christmas Day," by the 100 high school voices; "Thou Must Leave Thy Lowly Dwelling," from "The Childhood of Christ," by Berlioz; "Christmas Day," a setting of traditional carols by Gustave Holst to be sung by the four soloists and the Oratorio Society with orchestra, and the program finale--the "Hallelujah Chorus." It will be done antiphonally, with on-stage and balcony choirs alternating phrases of the traditional work.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov -- Two jazz groups will be on the bill for Southern Illinois University's fifth annual Fine Arts Festival here early next year.

The Festival, whose theme this year will embrace "Contemporary American Arts," will open Jan. 31 and finish three weeks later with a Fine Arts Ball staged by SIU design students. All Festival attractions will be free to the public except a Feb. 18 concert by the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra which is part of the Carbondale Community Concert series.

Festival chairman Steven Barwick said the J.J. Johnson Quintet will play a concert at 8 p.m. Feb. 15 in Shryock Auditorium. Johnson is one of the leading modern jazz trombonists and his group is ranked among the top eastern units attempting to extend the range of jazz in experimental forms. The Sal Salvador Quartet will play a one-hour concert the morning of Feb. 4 during a regular Freshman Convocation. Salvador formerly played guitar with the Stan Kenton orchestra.

Among other Festival attractions will be the Eastman String Quartet, the Merce Cunningham Dance Group, the Eger Players drama group, the Oxford String Quartet and a special Illinois Composers Symposium with Ingalf Dahl, University of Southern California composer, as special guest. Photographer David Siskind, Sculptor Sidney Geist and Painter Paul Burlin will be on hand during exhibits of their works.

The SIU Choir and Southern Illinois Symphony will perform new works by SIU Composers Robert Mueller and Will Gay Bottje.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- A $22,000 grant has been approved for three Southern Illinois University sociologists to continue their study of how home environment influences the personality development of children.

Carrying on the work are Drs. Melvin Brooks (the project leader), Douglas Rennie, and Herman Lantz. A participant in the project is Dr. R. F. Sondag, Illinois regional health officer for southern Illinois and former Jackson County Health Department director. The Illinois Department of Public Welfare is providing the grant from its psychiatric training and research funds, according to Brooks.

The primary aim of the study is to discover what relation various home stress and strain conditions and child rearing practices have on the behavior of children. It is generally recognized that family influences during a child's early life have much to do with how he will get along later in society, but detailed knowledge about the exact nature of this relationship is lacking, Brooks says.

The study, started about 18 months ago, is confined to Jackson County where the researchers are surveying all families with children born in 1957 and 1958. Between 900 and 1,000 families are involved. Research plans call for periodic follow-up interviews for several years to reach meaningful conclusions about the study objective.

The work was supported last year by an initial grant-in-aid of more than $4,000 from federal and state sources through the county health department.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- A dramatized insight into the psycho-social aspects of mental health will be provided on stage by the Southern Players of Southern Illinois University during a special school-year road show.

Sponsored by the Illinois State Department of Welfare, a six-member company of the Southern Players will stage two-mental health-oriented skits in Southern Illinois communities.

Under the arrangement, the Players are limited to performances within easy driving distance from campus. Written by members of the American Theater Wing, the 40-minute plays are designed for simple staging. Director David Brookbank is accepting bookings in communities where audiences of at least 50 persons can be assured. Community civic, educational religious, and fraternal groups wishing to arrange for free bookings should write to Brookbank, SIU theater department.

"Tomorrow Is a Day," a play by Nora Stirling, concerns the problems inherent in the social reinstatement of the withdrawn and inhibited child. Another play by the same author, "Return to Thine Own House," will be available beginning in February. The play depicts the difficulties involved in society's acceptance of the newly-cured mental patient.

Brookbank, a teaching assistant from Dupo, is a 1955 graduate of SIU. He participated in numerous campus productions and was an original member of the Shepherd of the Hills summer stock theater at Branson, Missouri. Brookbank was the first person to receive a master's degree in theater from Southern. After spending two years in the army he is currently working on his doctorate.

Engagements for the play have already been scheduled in Granite City (Dec. 11), Dundas (Jan. 21), Carrier Mills (Feb. 4), Lakeland School in Carbondale (March 1), and Hillcrest School of Eldorado (Jan. 18).

All of them are sponsored by Parent Teacher's Association except in Granite City where the St. John's United Church is hosting the play.

Members of the cast, listed by home town, are:

BENTON: Phyllis Thomann

CARBONDALE: Judy Helton

CHESTER: Jeffrey Gilster

FAIRBURY: Joyce Freed

LINCOLN: Julie Anderson

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. -- Tuesday (Dec. 1) is the deadline for applications from southern Illinois secretaries who want to take their first crack at an examination to qualify as Certified Public Secretary next spring.

Harves Rahe, associate professor of secretarial and business education at Southern Illinois University, said that secretaries who have taken the examination and wish to try again have until Feb. 1 to apply. The exams will be held May 6-7 at SIU.

The six-part examination developed by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries covers personal adjustment and human relations, business law, business administration, secretarial accounting, secretarial skills, and secretarial procedures. Successful completion of the exam gives the secretary the distinction comparable to that of a certified public accountant in the accounting field.

The Carbondale chapter of the National Secretaries Association has been conducting weekly classes for its members to prepare them for the exam. This is the first year that SIU has been selected as a testing center.

CPS candidates must be at least 25 years old, have eight years secretarial experience, or seven years plus some post-high school education, including 12 months continuous experience with one firm.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- British author-humorist-historian C. Northcote Parkinson will appear at Southern Illinois University's Browne Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Friday (Dec. 4), Dr. Henry J. Rehn, dean of the school of business, announced today.

Parkinson, Raffles professor of history at the University of Malaya, is on a cross-country lecture tour after completing a summer lecture series on "The History of the British Empire" at Harvard.

Author of the recent worldwide best seller "Parkinson's Law", Parkinson has also penned many books on economic, naval and military history, just recently ventured into satirical political economics.

Time describes his views as "a delightfully unprofessional diagnosis of that widespread 20th century malady - galloping orgmanship."

The lecture will be open to the public, faculty and students.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Southern Illinois poultry producers and hatcherymen will take a hard look at egg marketing problems and the changing poultry picture in Illinois during a meeting at Southern Illinois University next Tuesday (Dec. 8). The Illinois Egg Council and the Illinois Poultry and Hatchery Federation are inviting all farm flock owners, hatchery operators, and feed men in the area to the meeting which will begin at 10 a.m. in the SIU Agriculture Building Seminar Room.

Clarence Ems, Springfield, superintendent of the state division of poultry, will discuss the hatcheryman's most pressing problems.

Lee Loomis, Chatsworth hatchery operator, will discuss both sides of the poultry integration question from the standpoint of the hatcherman.

Sam Ridlen, University of Illinois poultry extension specialist, will point out the changing poultry picture in the state, and Scott Hinners, SIU poultry specialist, will discuss egg marketing problems and their relation to poultry organizations.

The place of the Illinois poultry organizations in the future of the poultry industry will be pinpointed by Charles Meler, Nashville poultryman who is an Illinois director in the American Poultry and Hatchery Federation.

R. M. Hendrickson, Minneapolis, Minn., a marketing specialist for General Mills, will present new merchandising methods for selling eggs. Walter J. Wills, SIU agricultural marketing specialist, will discuss the poultry outlook, and Clarence Olson, Plano (Ill.) egg producer, will relate how egg pricing problems have been plaguing the poultry industry.

Others on the program will include Ray Parmenter, Franklin, Mass., president of the National Egg Council and the American Poultry and Hatchery Federation, and Stanley Taylor, president of the Illinois federation.

Billy Goodman, SIU poultryman, will preside at the morning sessions. Alex Reed, chairman of the SIU animal industries department, will be afternoon chairman.

HAVANA, CUBA -- Public schools in a democracy must stay "close to the needs of people," the president of Southern Illinois University told educators in Havana, Cuba, today ( Thursday ).

Delyte W. Morris of S-I-U said the public schools should so entwine themselves into the daily life of communities about them that they furnish intellectual leadership and stimulate dynamic social growth.

Morris spoke in Cuba at the invitation of the U. S. State Department. He addressed the final session of a meeting devoted to educational reforms under the revolutionary government.

In a democracy, Morris said, public schools must be "citadels of freedom to learn and freedom to teach the truth wherever it may lead." They must also, he said, "be free of political or religious dogma and free of economic or racial bigotry!"

CARBONDALE, ILL., -- The Herrin, Illinois, local of the textile workers union has set up a unique merit scholarship at Southern Illinois University. The recipient will be chosen from among sons and daughters of the 300 members of Local 1-3-7-4, Textile Workers Union of America. In Herrin, the union represents workers at Allen Industries.

Members of the union voted to donate one-thousand-dollars to the S-I-U Foundation for the one-year scholarship. Vernon Perrine of Royalton, president of the local, said the scholarship would be renewed each year if the membership approves.

CARBONDALE, ILL., -- An electronic computer will be used to evaluate the business decisions of Southern Illinois executives meeting in Carbondale next week. Three teams, each with nine manufacturing executives, will match wits in a hypothetical sales war. Each will chart a business course for its company, and the decisions of all three teams will be put through an I-B-M 6-50 computer.

The machine will show which team made the best decisions in terms of capital worth, inventory, profit and the like. Ralph Bedwell, director of S-I-U's Small Business Institute, says the object of the "Decision Making Game" next Friday will be to give business specialists of narrow training an appreciation of all business functions in a manufacturing operation.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- "Deck the hair with lots of color" is the Christmas theme song of members of a Southern Illinois University Vocational Training Institute cosmetology class.

The female students, taking a 44-week course to qualify them to become beauticians, are giving Mom and Dad a special present this year.

Each coed is adorning her hair with a different color, including such picturesque ones as "moonbeam glow", "blue mood", "mauve decade", "American beauty rose", "fire silver", "lime sherbet", "twilight mauve", "ripe apricot", and "angel white."

The hair styles and coloring were done by the students under direction of Miss Eleanor K. Mathis, coordinator of the program and instructor, Mrs. Isolde L. York, who add "Why not? Mom and Dad might as well be getting used to the idea. It's the coming thing, you know."

Participating in this melee of Christmas color are:

ALBION: Pat Wilson

BENTON: Jackie Conner

CARTERVILLE: Carolyn Baltimore

CHARLESTON: Marilyn Pierce

HARRISBURG: Peggy Allen

HERRIN: Evalena Stafford

OTTAWA: Kay Kummer

ROCKFORD: Maureen Boyle

ST. ELMO: Susan Tate.

1. Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of the proposed changes on the system. The study is organized as follows: Section 2 describes the system and the proposed changes. Section 3 presents the results of the experiments. Section 4 discusses the conclusions and the implications of the study.

The system is a distributed database system. The proposed changes are to the indexing and query processing algorithms. The experiments were conducted on a system with 10 processors. The results show that the proposed changes improve the performance of the system. The conclusions are that the proposed changes are effective and efficient. The implications of the study are that the proposed changes can be applied to other distributed database systems.

The study is a preliminary study. Further studies are needed to confirm the results of this study. The study is a preliminary study. Further studies are needed to confirm the results of this study. The study is a preliminary study. Further studies are needed to confirm the results of this study.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Advance registration is now underway for winter quarter classes in interior decoration and apparel design, Dr. Adeline M. Hoffman, chairman of the clothing and textiles department at Southern Illinois University, has announced.

Herbert Theiss, professional interior decorator from St. Louis, who is on the faculty of the School of Home Economics, serving part-time, will give two undergraduate courses on campus during the new term starting Jan. 4. One will deal with the modern movement in interior decoration, the other with the decorative arts. Theiss will also conduct an adult non-credit class in interior decoration at Waterloo.

"We hope that Mr. Theiss will be able to give an adult night class in Carbondale during the spring term," Dr. Hoffman said.

Another offering in clothing and textile department for the winter term will be a junior class in "Apparel Design," to be conducted by Dr. Helen Evans, associate professor. Dr. Evans will also teach a class in "Decorative Design," dealing with block printing, silk screen work, textile design and other decorative processes.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Students planning to register for night or Saturday classes at Southern Illinois University during the winter term can do so only on the night of Jan. 4 or morning of Jan. 9, according to Registrar Robert McGrath.

In the past, the Registrar's office has been open for late-registering night students and Saturday students each night of the first regular week of school. McGrath said, "All students planning to take night or Saturday work during the winter quarter and who have not yet registered are urged to secure a schedule of classes from the Registrar's office and study the registration calendar so they won't make a trip to Carbondale when offices are closed."

The hours for night registration on Jan. 4 will be from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Those unable to register then may do so between 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Dec. 18 is the final date for fee payments during the regular registration period.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- A course in nutrition-weight control will be offered by the Division of Technical and Adult Education at Southern Illinois University, in connection with the School of Home Economics, starting Jan. 6.

Physicians are invited to refer patients who could profit from such a course to Dr. Jennie M. Harper, associate professor of food and nutrition, who will conduct the class.

Dr. Harper offered a similar course last year in cooperation with the Illinois Heart Association, with an enrollment of 12 persons. A follow-up survey of these "students" shows that their weight losses ranged from 3 to 13 pounds during the eight-week course, and that most of them have maintained their weight at the level reached when the class ended.

The course is designed to help persons understand the role of nutrition, their normal body needs for nutrients, and how to plan menus or select food in order to maintain a weight that is satisfactory for the individual, Dr. Harper explained.

The class will meet for eight weeks on Wednesday nights, from 7 to 9 in room 212, Home Economics Building. The fee will be $9.60.

Carbondale physicians have received a supply of referral blanks for the class. Other physicians or prospective students may obtain additional blanks from Dr. Harper. Only persons referred by a physician will be accepted for the class.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Two new scholarships for advertising students have been established at Southern Illinois University by the Charles H. Sandage chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity.

Dr. Donald G. Hileman, professor of journalism, said the scholarships were made possible by recent fund-raising activities of the club.

One scholarship, a $100 fund named the Larry Mann advertising scholarship, will be awarded to the junior with the highest academic average, and the other, the Alpha Delta Sigma Advertising award, will be given to the junior who members feel has contributed most to the club's programs and to SIU's advertising department.

The new scholarships bring to four the total offered by that department. Also available is a St. Louis Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies award to an outstanding male senior advertising major, and an Advertising Club of St. Louis scholarship to the outstanding male and female advertising graduates.

SPORTS

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Southern Illinois University opens its "home" basketball season Dec. 21 against the University of California, Davis Branch, in the Marion High School gym.

The 8:30 p.m. contest, staged for the benefit of Marion's City Youth Baseball Organization, is the Salukis' only southern Illinois appearance in December.

Coach Harry Gallatin has his high scoring youngsters on the road all month. They opened with a 79-74 win at Quincy and meet powerful Tennessee A & I in Nashville Saturday ( Dec. 12 ). Visits to two tourneys, the All-American City Dec. 13-19 at Owensboro, Ky., and the Quincy Holiday Dec. 23-30, are slated before the official home opener Jan. 4 against Kentucky Wesleyan.

For the barnstorming Aggies from Davis, the game will mark the end of a three-game swing through the midwest. The Aggies, coached by former SIU basketball assistant Jim Sells, meet Valparaiso and Washington University (St. Louis) before facing the Salukis.

Sells and his West Coach crew opened with two losses, 60-38, to the Gallopins' Gaels of St. Mary's, and 55-37 to College of Pacific. The game will be the first meeting between SIU and the Aggies.

Tickets are now on sale at the following area business places:

ANNA: E. Blankenship & Co.
CARBONDALE: University Drugs and the Elks
HERRIN: J. V. Walker
MARION: J. V. Walker and TVW Men's Store
WEST FRANKFORT: The Sports Center

Ticket prices are $1.50 for reserved seats, $1 for general admission and 50 cents for students, including SIU students.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Southern Illinois University has asked for bids on two high-pressure steam generators which will boost campus heating capacity from 99,000 to 226,000 pounds of steam per hour.

University Architect Charles Pulley said the increased steam capacity will be enough to heat the University Center (now under construction) and other proposed buildings, including a Physical Education and Military Training center, five new student residence halls and a College of Education building. He said the boost should be adequate for all campus heating needs until 1965.

Bids will be due Jan. 21 but no final action on the 80,000 pounds-per-hour boilers and a 25-by-48 foot addition to the present steam plant to hold them will be made until after a freeze on all state construction funds is lifted by Gov. Stratton. This is expected after the first of the year.

SIU now heats its campus buildings with three 33,000 pounds-per-hour steam generating units. One of them will be removed to make way for one of the new boilers.

The steam plant addition, including boilers, is earmarked for $900,000 out of SIU's $6.8 million construction budget during 1959-61.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- A European study tour, dealing primarily with the fashion industry and including one of the famed "Paris Openings," will be offered by Southern Illinois University as a summer course for graduate credit during the 1960 summer session.

The tour will be conducted by Dr. Adeline M. Hoffman, chairman of the clothing and textiles department. It will last six weeks and will provide eight quarter hours of credit. While primarily for graduate students in home economics, Dr. Hoffman said, it is possible that students in other fields may apply the credit as an elective toward an advanced degree.

The group will visit eight countries, including France, Italy, England, Ireland and Switzerland.

Cost of the trip will be $1,295 from New York and return, plus University fees, Dr. Hoffman said.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- John Miles, applied science instructor at Southern Illinois University, has been awarded a National Science Foundation faculty fellowship for advanced study next year. Miles plans to work toward his doctorate in mechanical engineering at the University of Illinois next fall.

Miles, a native of Rolla, Mo., receives his bachelor's and master's degrees in mechanical engineering from the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla. He was an instructor there for three years before coming to SIU in 1958. He also has worked for McDonnell Aircraft Corporation and the Shell Oil Company.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Southern Illinois University's Graduate School has stiffened English examination requirements for master's degree students.

Dean Willis G. Swartz said beginning next July 1, no one will be allowed to take the required Graduate English Examination more than three times. Persons failing the test once must wait five months before attempting it again, and those failing a second time must wait another year. Also, the test must be satisfactorily passed at least one term (12 weeks) before qualification for graduation.

Since the new policy reduces the number of times the test may be taken, Dean Swartz said an alternate plan will enable failees to enroll in "Usage in English," a junior level course to be offered beginning this winter. A grade of "B" or better will satisfy test requirements.

"The new rules will most seriously affect those part-time students scattered throughout the area who may have failed the tests," Swartz said. "It is important that they take immediate steps to improve their use of the language."

SPORTS

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- A tall clutch of California Aggies tests Southern Illinois University's basketball Salukis Monday ( Dec. 21 ) in the Marion High School gym. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

The visiting Mustangs from Davis, Calif., will send a starting five averaging 6-2 onto the floor, exactly matching the average of Coach Harry Gallatin's openers.

Topping the Mustang crew is Center Harry Bergtholdt, a 6-4 freshman. An all-around high school athlete ( four letters in basketball, football, and track ), Bergtholdt last year was named to the first team of the All-Sacramento Valley basketball squad.

The forwards are Sophomore John Talt, 6-3, and John Wasserburger, 6-1. Talt was fourth in scoring for the Aggies last season with 100 points for a 4.8 average. Wasserburger finished sixth with 61 points.

At guards Cal Coach Jim Sells, assistant basketball coach at SIU from 1955-57, will go with Co-Captain Brian Jeffery, 6-0, and Freshman Tim Indart, 6-3. Jeffery hit 46 percent of his shots last year to finish third in scoring with 144 points, a 6.5 point average. Indart, also a standout athlete in high school, earned the starting assignment with good play against St. Mary's and College of Pacific.

Gallatin will start the all-veteran crew that opened the Salukis' first two games: Capt. Dick Ruggles and Jim Gualdoni at guards, Tom McGreal at Center and Charlie Vaughn and Don Hepler at forwards.

Before Monday's game, Southern competes at the All-American City Tournament at Owensboro, Ky., ( Dec. 13-19 ), opening the four-team meet Friday against Middle Tennessee State. The Aggies tackle Valparaiso Thursday and Washington University of St. Louis Friday.

Proceeds from the game Monday will go to Marion's City Youth Baseball Organization. Tickets are $1.50 for reserved seats, $1.00 for general admission and 50 cents for students, including SIU students.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- A continuation of "chemistry by television" will be offered by Southern Illinois University this winter.

Persons now taking Chemistry 408 via the Continental Classroom series on modern chemistry over the NBC television network can re-register Feb. 3 for Chemistry 409, carrying five quarter hours credit, according to Benson B. Poirier, assistant dean of the SIU Extension Division.

The course is televised in this area over WPSD - TV, Paducah, Ky., and KSD - TV, St. Louis, from 6:30 to 7 a.m. each morning Monday through Friday. On alternate Saturdays, students gather in Parkinson Hall on the SIU campus for a review and question and answer session. Registration Feb. 3 also will be held there.

The course is taught by Dr. Wilbur N. Moulton, assistant professor of chemistry at SIU.

ATTENTION: FARM EDITORS.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Dec. -- Trends and research needs in modern swine production will be discussed by Dr. Joseph E. Burnside of Southern Illinois University at the second in a series of monthly field day-type meetings for hog producers and swine equipment men in Carbondale Jan. 9.

The SIU animal industries department and the Ranger Equipment Company, Delphi, Ind., are cooperating in the meetings for swine producers and industry representatives from Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, and southern Indiana. Sessions are being arranged by Donald Foster, Macomb ( Ill. ), field representative for the cooperating firm.

Morning sessions, beginning at 9 a.m., and the noon luncheon meeting will be in the Carbondale Elks Club. During the afternoon the group will tour the SIU Swine Center facilities under the guidance of Burnside, SIU swine specialist. Dr. J. Marcus Haggard, director of research for the Ranger Equipment Company, recently said the SIU Swine Center is among the world's most advanced in mechanized facilities for farrowing and finishing swine. The firm has contributed substantial grants-in-aid for swine research facilities at SIU.

Burnside, a native of Tampa, Fla., has been on the SIU agriculture faculty since 1955, coming from a position as livestock toxicologist at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station at Tifton, Ga. He received his doctorate in animal nutrition from the University of Wisconsin.
